Air Force Expansion Cost Alerts Senate GOP

70-Group Plan To Be Scrutinized Closely for Deficit Spending Threat

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans said yesterday they want to look carefully into the cost of the 70-group Air Force before acting on the controversial defense issue.

GOP members of the Senate Armed Services Committee met behind closed doors yesterday to consider the situation arising from the over-whelming House vote Thursday for invincible air power.

Afterward, several of the group said the chief problem in the minds of those present was the threat of deficit financing which may be involved.

To Approach It Carefully

"We will have to approach the matter carefully," declared Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.). "The 70-group program, plus increases for the other armed forces, might add another six billion dollars a year to the defense budget.

"We don't want to get into deficit financing. That's bad. And that's what is causing the committee so much concern."

Echoed by Robertson

Senator Edward Robertson (R., Wyo.) echoed Gurney's warning. He declared he favors additional contract authority for planes, to modernize the Air Force and "get the factories going for a possible later emergency."

"But we must not be stampeded," he added. "The situation would have to be extremely serious to warrant our going into deficit financing."

Estimates on the cost of the 70-group program provided by the Air Force put over-all appropriations for that arm at 7½ billions a year by 1952. This would be 2½ times present USAF outlays.

If the Army and Navy were expanded also to keep the three arms "in balance," the over-all defense budget would total 25 to 26 billions annually by 1951, estimates made available by Defense Secretary James Forrestal's office show.

Representative George Bates (R., Mass.) asked Forrestal aides for the data and put it in the Congressional Record. It showed that such a program would require 21½ billions in cash in 1951, plus another billion contractual authority.

Not the Full Picture

The Defense Office informed The Washington Post that the figures given Congressman Bates did not include the cost of uni-

James Roosevelt's Wife Better After Tablet Mistake

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 16 (AP).—A combination of headache tablets and a sleeping potion, the latter taken by mistake, put her husband said, sent Mrs. James Roosevelt to the hospital in a coma today.

Mrs. Roosevelt

She is out of danger, and able to go home tonight.

"I hear there's a report around that Mrs. Roosevelt attempted suicide," said the tall Jimmy, chairman of the California Democratic Central Committee. "Nothing could be more ridiculous. We are happy and have three fine children."

Roosevelt said his wife, the former Romelle Schneider, has been suffering badly from headaches, and last night she took the tablets. The headache persisted and "at 3 a. m. she went to the bathroom for more tablets. By mistake she got the wrong bottle, and took sleeping tablets instead," Roosevelt said.

Sunday's Post Will Be DAR Souvenir Edition

Tomorrow's Sunday Washington Post will be a special souvenir edition honoring the Daughters of American Revolution organization, which holds its national convention here this coming week. In Section II an entire page will be devoted to the DAR—the story of its origin, policies, battles and makeup.

The Post will feature thorough daily coverage of the meeting. DAR members, or anyone else so desiring, may have The Post for the entire convention week mailed to any point in the U. S. for 45c. Orders may be placed with the Post representative at Constitution Hall or at the lobby desk in the Post building.

German Art Exhibit Likely To Continue

Morse Asking Army To Extend Showing Until Ruling on Return

Extension of the exhibit of German-owned paintings at the National Gallery for a few days longer was foreseen yesterday.

Senator Wayne Morse, (R., Oreg.) chairman of a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee said at the conclusion of its hearing on the Fulbright bill to keep the paintings here temporarily, that he was going to ask the Department of the Army to continue the exhibit until a decision has been reached by the full committee.

Yesterday it attracted 24,279 persons, bringing the total to 709,663 visitors since the show opened March 17.

The subcommittee yesterday heard representatives of the Army and State Departments argue for immediate return of the paintings to Germany for policy reasons and leaders in the art world urge further showing first. It will meet early next week and make a report to the full committee, Senator Morse said.

The bill, S-2439, guarantees German ownership of the paintings, proposes they be kept in the United States until such time as a national German government was recognized, and would permit exhibit of the collection throughout the country with an admission fee that would be used for the relief of German children.

Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper, jr., brought out in his testimony that Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military administrator in the occupied zone, had promised the Germans they would be exhibited there in April.

"Any delay would play into the hands of the Communists," he said.

Draper's view was supported by Charles Saltzman, State Department secretary for occupied territories.

He said he felt "the compelling thing is for us to do what we said we were going to do. The effect of their return will be felt in more places than Germany."

Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), father of the bill, after stressing the public interest and cultural significance of the collection said "the Army seems to think if they are returned to Germany and then anything happens to them they are not responsible. But the Army cannot absolve us of re-

N. Y. Delegates Held Certain For Truman

New York, April 16 (AP).—The State Democratic Committee unanimously commended President Truman today in a resolution viewed as committing New York's 98 national convention votes to his candidacy.

The resolution slapped hard at Henry Wallace for accepting Communist support and patted the President on the back for his veto of the Taft-Hartley Act, his civil rights program and his "far seeing vision" in sponsoring the European recovery program.

The committee differed with the President on Palestine policy, however, urging that partition of the Holy Land be effected without delay.

The resolution was presented by Edward J. Flynn, former national chairman. Flynn and State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick conferred with Mr. Truman in the White House earlier this week and the President said at his press conference yesterday that they went away happy.

Prior to the meeting there had been speculation that Mr. Truman would not be mentioned because of opposition of some committee members to the administration's stand on Palestine.

Journey to Vermont Cancelled by Taft

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday cancelled a trip to Vermont in order to campaign in his home State of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination. Harold E. Stassen flew to Florida in his campaign for Florida delegates, then will return to Ohio to battle Taft there. Stories on Page 3.

Iowa and Nebraska To Support Truman

By the Associated Press

Two Iowa and Nebraska Democratic leaders said after a White House call yesterday that President Truman is "beginning to pick up strength steadily."

James C. Quigley, Nebraska national committeeman, and Jake More, Iowa State chairman, told reporter they are optimisitic over prospects for Mr. Truman's election.

House Group Revises Farm Price Supports

Cuts Cotton to 90% Of Parity, Non-Basic Commodities to 60%

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A new program for Government price supports for agricultural products was approved by the House Agriculture Committee yesterday, after a bitter battle between butter and margarine interests.

Southern members of the committee—who had fought for repeal of special taxes and licenses on margarine—tangled with Northern members from dairying sections.

In retaliation for the Southern members' fight on margarine taxes, which has resulted in overruling the committee's tabling of all proposals to repeal taxes on margarine, Northern members yesterday at one time voted to remove all price supports from three of the South's major crops—tobacco, peanuts and rice.

Later the action was reconsidered. However, the price support level for cotton was reduced from 92½ per cent of parity to 90 per cent, along with the same support level for other basic commodities—wheat, corn, tobacco, rice and peanuts.

Dairy interests, however, succeeded in including milk and milk products in the list of commodities supported at 90 per cent of parity.

The proposed bill would cut the mandatory support level for other, non-basic commodities, to 60 per cent of parity. These include dried peas and beans, soybeans, flaxseed and potatoes. The bill would, however, give authority to the Secretary of Agriculture to raise these levels when growers meet planting goals set by the Government.

The bill also continues Government authority to impose acreage restrictions and marketing quotas. Continued demand for farm products under the European Recovery Plan, however, Chairman Clifford Hope (R., Kans.) of the committee said, probably will remove any likelihood that limitations will be imposed for more than a year.

GM Plants To Lay Off 200,000

Pig Iron Shortage Blamed; 130,000 Miners Still Out, Awaiting Verdict

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

While some 130,000 coal miners remained out of the pits awaiting results of court action against their union chief, General Motors Corp., said yesterday shortage of pig iron would force layoff of 200,000 auto workers by April 23.

Most of the 400,000 coal miners had gone back to work yesterday, but somewhat less than one third remained idle. They were waiting for a court decision, expected Monday, on contempt charges against John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers.

The General Motors statement indicated production of automobiles would be sharply curtailed, although it was hoped fabricating plant operations could be resumed by May 3.

UAW Doubts Reason

Walter P. Reuther, CIO-United Auto Workers president, took another view of General Motors' action.

"It seems to us highly credible," he said, "that the announced layoff may be more closely related to collective bargaining negotiations now in progress than to an alleged shortage of steel."

The corporation said assembly operations would be continued "as long as material permits." Nevertheless, it was regarded as certain that the halt in fabrication would eventually cut into assembly of finished automobiles.

Before GM announced its impending shutdown, it was estimated the coal strike already had cost at least a quarter million finished automobiles. A 10-day GM shutdown would add another 50,000 vehicles.

Ford has not been seriously affected by the coal situation because most of its assembly lines were idle for changeover to 1949 models. Chrysler Corp. reported it "hoped to be able to contir production."

Lewis' trial, which was held here Thursday, was on a charge of contempt of court resulting from his nine-day delay in ordering miners back to work after being directed by the court. The men were out 29 days.

The union head contended he did not call out the miners but merely had notified them their contract had been "dishonored" by the operators when agreement was not reached on a pension plan. After a pension agreement at later meetings, Lewis told the men they should go back to work.

At Pittsburgh yesterday, United States Steel officials said additional coal made possible by a "surprise" return to work of 1700 miners at three H. C. Frick Co. mines would enable the big firm to continue producing steel at 72 per cent of normal. In other States coal production was on the increase as miners returned slowly to the pits.

No Problem for Judge

$100 and Costs for Speeding, Answer to 'Whiz at Figures'

The mathematical formula which Prof. Haig Galajikian used to explain the speed of a moving auto equals $100 and costs.

That was the answer arrived at yesterday, by Prince Georges Circuit Judge Charles Marbury in the second trial of the former Princeton mathematics professor on speeding charges.

The verdict, upholding a Hyattsville Police Court decision also gave the Maryland census taker a problem in subtraction. "I'm going to take my business and move out of Maryland," the professor snorted.

Galajikian, 60, now an Aberdeen fabricated house manufacturer, was arrested on Washington-Baltimore blvd. last November 29 by State Trooper Earl Griffith, who said he clocked Galajikian at between 80 and 85 miles and hour for almost a mile.

The professor, who said he knew the policeman was following him and therefore held his speed under 60, offered what he called "simple arithmetic" to brace his contention:

The policeman was going in the opposite direction; had to stop and make a U-turn to catch up with and get a pace on Galajikian's car. To do this, the professor reasoned, in a 2.7-mile stretch, the Trooper would have had to drive 147 miles an hour. Griffith said his car's maximum speed was 95.

Galajikian said his arithmetic was combined with American Automobile Association and National Safety Council records to prove that after stopping and making the U-turn, it would have taken 50 seconds for Griffith to get his car up to 95 miles an hour.

"During that length of time," the professor went on, "his average speed would have been 47¼ miles an hour, which would have carried him a distance of .65 of a mile.

"And during that same 50 seconds, I would have gone—at the speed the officer charges — 1.18 miles, further breaching the gap between the two cars.

By the same line of reasoning, Galajikian said, it would have been physically impossible for the trooper to have overtaken him in that distance had the professor been traveling at the speed charged.

After the incident, the professor said, he had his speedometer checked—found it registered 6 miles an hour fast.

"There are a great many variables in the professor's figures," Judge Marbury mused.

Linked to Malingering

Sick-Leave Golf Mild Tonic, Police Strong Man Contends

"Golf is one of the mildest forms of exercise for anyone," Pvt. Richard Keith Kallio, 29, Police Department strong man, declared yesterday before a Police Trial Board.

Kallio pleaded not guilty to charges of (1) malingering and feigning illness and disability, and (2) making a false statement to a superior officer. The second charge was dismissed by a unanimous vote of the three-man board for lack of evidence. A decision on the other will be announced Monday.

The charges stemmed from reports that Kallio was seen on a golf course while on sick leave.

Sergt. Arthur E. Fredette, detailed to follow the athlete, testified he saw Kallio on the Rock Creek public golf course twice on April 8.

The broad-shouldered, powerfully built policeman holds the District AAU heavyweight weightlifting championship.

However, since a fall down some steps last November, Kallio said he had not been lifting weights, but was playing golf, which he said could not aggravate his back injury.

"People 80 and 90 years old play golf," he said.

Kallio contended that Dr. William Warren Sager, member of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, had referred him to Dr. John Allan Talbot of 1835 I st. nw. He testified that Dr. Talbot had prescribed mild exercises, which he interpreted to include workouts on the links.

Dr. Sager testified, however, that in a consultation later, he had "intended" to direct Kallio to halt such exercising and remain within his home except for brief periods of sunbathing.

'Second Bogota' Fails

26 Brazil Reds Arrested After Arsenal Blast Kills 23

Rio de Janeiro, April 16 (AP).—Brazilian federal police announced today that 26 Communists have been arrested and directly implicated in the explosion yesterday of the Army's Deodoro arsenal.

The arsenal was wrecked by five blasts. Twenty-three persons are known to have been killed. Firemen still are seeking 12 girl employes who were trapped and possibly killed in a nearby textile mill. Estimates of the number of injured ranged from 100 to 200. Walls crumbled within a mile radius of the scene. Damage was expected to exceed one million dollars.

The police said the explosion was intended as the beginning of a Communist plot for a "second Bogota" here May 1. The plot was attributed to a high leader of the Communist Party, which is outlawed in Brazil. Police withheld his name, but said his arrest was expected soon.

According to the official account, the Communists intended to kill the Brazilian War Minister, Gen. Canrobert Pereira da Costa. An unexplained delay in the explosion saved his life, since he had left the scene just 50 minutes earlier.

One person was caught carrying grenade caps, police said. Seven women Communists were arrested for distributing Communist pamphlets immediately after the explosion. Police closed the Communist newspaper Folha Dopovo and confiscated its issue on the newsstands.

Italy Mobilizes 330,000 Men To Keep Peace

Emergency General Staff on 24-Hour Duty Until Count of Votes

Rome, April 16 (AP).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi mobilized Italy's 330,000 soldiers, carabiniers and civil police today to maintain peace and order in Sunday's parliamentary election.

To direct the government forces, Gasperi set up an emergency general staff of cabinet ministers, military and police commanders. They will stay on 24-hour-a-day duty in the Viminale palace here, sleeping in the building, until final results of the election are known, probably Wednesday evening. The government fears Communist-inspired disorders.

All cabinet ministers were ordered to stay in Rome to insure a quorum in event of a national emergency.

Liquor, wine and beer sales were banned throughout the country for the 48 hours beginning at midnight Saturday and ending at midnight Monday, after the close of the polls in two days of voting.

Gasperi, in his closing speech at Naples, accused the Communists of seeking to plunge Italy into civil war in their desperate attempt to prevent political eclipse.

The Communists in a climactic attack on the government all over the country charged that Gasperi's government had secretly joined a "war bloc" of western European nations.

Three Notes Spotlight Soviet's Trieste Stand

By the United Press

The United States, Britain and France yesterday sought to clinch an anti-Communist victory in Sunday's Italian elections by reminding Russia publicly that she alone is blocking the return to Trieste to Italy.

In similar notes delivered to the Soviet Embassies in Washington, London and Paris, the three powers politely invited Rusia for the third time to agree to a revision of the Italian peace treaty so that Italy could regain the coveted territory.

Russia rejected their two previous proposals

There was no reason to believe the Soviets would change their minds, but by reviving the issue almost on the eve of the Italian elections, the western powers obviously were hoping to put Russia and her Communist supporters in Italy "on the spot."

U. S. Winning 'Cold War,' Editors Told

Report on Geneva Meeting Cites Decline Of Russian Influence

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Erwin D. (Spike) Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, said yesterday that the United States is winning the "cold war" against Russia and is in a stronger position than it has been since 1945.

Appearing before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, of which he is first vice president, Canham made a report on the United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information at Geneva. He said he found the atmosphere there more favorable to this country than it has been at any U. N. meeting since the end of the war.

"ERP Appreciated"

Those who would compromise and appease Communism are far in the background," Canham said. "The neutrals and middle-ground nations are all pretty much on our side now. We are winning the cold war.

"The Communists still have powerful weapons, and they may use them at any time. But our long-range weapons, which are based on a practical application of the ideals of freedom, are making solid and steady headway.

"ERP is deeply appreciated everywhere in western Europe. There is no longer any doubt among Europeans as to the disinterested and tremendous contribution Americans are making.

Imperialism Charge Fails

"The charge of imperialism against us is not sticking, for as the Europeans say: 'If the Americans wanted to dominate us, they would not urge us to unite, but would try to keep us divided.'

"All this has a real bearing on freedom of information, for it means that although there are many and new impediments to freedom in the world, there is still a big chance for freedom to win. Men in Europe, newspapermen in Europe, still know the meaning of freedom and will fight for it."

Canham, after urging vigilance against violations of press freedom at home, urged the society to call on the Government to permit entry into this country of "any bona fide, full-time news correspondent unless in the particular case there exists real danger to the security of the United States."

He also proposed that the so-

Russians Demand British Stop Vienna Commercial Flights

Vienna, Austria, April 16 (AP).—Russian officials demanded tonight that the British halt all commercial air flights into Vienna. But the British said they planned to continue flying.

The Russian request came at a time when ground transportation to and from British and American airports outside Vienna was disrupted. The airports are accessible only by driving through the Russian zone.

The Russians made their demand in a letter to the British high commissioner in Austria, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Galloway. It asked the British to cease "forthwith" alleged violations of previous agreements

The response of an official British spokesman was that regularly scheduled flights will continue. He said an agreement of July 9, 1945, gave the Schwechat airbase to the British forces for administrative and operational control. And he emphasized that the agreement did not specify the types of planes making flights to and from the airport.

An American official said it had been the view at American headquarters for some time that recent Russian travel restrictions had the goal of stopping all commercial flights into Vienna.

He said road blocks have been established along the road between the Tulln airport, which is used by the Americans, and Vienna. Similar check points were set up along British routes.

Americans started using an alternate route, but this too was sealed off. Then they found a second alternate, but American officials said they expected this would be blocked tomorrow.

West Europe Nations Sign Charter of Cooperation

Anglo-U. S., French Zones of Germany Included; Political Unity Is Foreseen

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, April 16 (NYHT).—The 16 nations that are benefitting from the European Recovery Program, and the western zones of Germany, signed their treaty today for the permanent coordination of their economies.

Many diplomatic observers see in the document the basis for a future United States of Europe. Strict observance of the treaty would result in close political unity, they say.

British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin presided at the ceremony.

Establishes OEEC

To guide the participants, recovery efforts within the framework of the ERP and direct their trade and the industrialists and workmen who are responsible for it, the treaty establishes the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

The organization thus finds its origin, but not its limits, in United States aid. Its objective also is to continue coordinating continental trade beyond the ERP's lifetime and to conclude outside economic agreements for the most effective use of European resources and manpower.

The organization wants to be an association of states that can hold its own in world trade against the United States or any other power. The ambilition has Washington's blessings.

The signatories adjourned their two-hour session just before 1 p. m. They constituted the last meeting of the Committee for European Economic Cooperation.

When they met next at 5 p. m., they assembled as members of the council of the permanent organization created by their treaty.

Paris is Headquarters

Paris was the unanimous choice for a permanent headquarters. At the suggestion of Bevin, Belgium was accorded the privilege of naming the president or chairman of the council. Bevin expressed the hope Belgium would pick Paul-Henri Spaak, her Foreign Minister.

The Council contains 18 members. They are the 16 countries and the commanders in chief of the occupation zones. Gen. Sir Brian H. Robertson signed for the joint Anglo-American zone and Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig for the French zone.

States participating are Austria, Belgium, Demark, France, Greece, Eire, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, the Netherlands, Portugal, the United Kingdom, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

Denmark and Greece were asked to appoint two Council vice presidents. Then Georges Bidault, the French Foreign Minister, proposed that the United Kingdom fill the presidency of the executive committee. The suggestion was adopted.

It meant that Sir Edmund Hall Patch, already selected by his government for committee membership and given the rank of ambassador for this purpose, would assume the post.

Robert Marjolin, 36-year-old deputy commissioner general of the French internal recovery scheme known as the Monnet plan, was chosen as secretary-general. All the elections were unanimous.

Los Angeles Area Has Light Quake

Los Angeles, April 16 (AP).—A gentle earthquake rocked much of Southern California at 3:28 p. m. (Pacific Daylight Time) today but there were no immediate reports of injury or damage.

Points from San Bernardino on the east, to Santa Barbara on the north and Long Beach on the south reported a light rolling motion. In Santa Monica it was described as "sort of a jar," in Redondo Beach as moderate.

California Institute of Technology seismographs at Pasadena recorded the shock, and put its center at a point about 40 miles from the laboratory, heavy enough to cause some damage at its point of origin.

Russian Reports Viewed as Part Of Nerve War

Berlin, April 16 (U.P.).—Russia opened an apparent nerve war tonight with reports that American women and children were leaving Berlin.

The Russian-controlled news service ADN said the American military government ordered American wives and children to leave.

Col. G. E. Textor, chief of the American information division, said he never heard of such an order.

ADN reported also women workers of the American military government (had been offered the choice of staying or leaving.

Drug Shipments Halted

American authorities said Russian transport restrictions had halted rail shipment to Bertlin of Insulin and penicillin. It was believed an order would be issued soon for shipment by plane.

British authorities reported Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Russian commander, had returned from Moscow, where he was believed to have received instructions for conducting the Soviet nerve war against the Western Allies.

Reverse Their Position

His return coincided with a surprising reversal of the Russian position in a joint Anglo-Russian investigation of the aerial crash in Berlin caused when a Russian fighter plane hit a British air liner.

For three days the Russians boycotted the investigation, refusing to hear either American or German eyewitnesses to the crash.

Now they notified the British they are willing to hear these witnesses.

However, the British already have completed their investigation and intend to send thei rreport to London tomorrow.

Air Plan Cost To Be Studied

versal military training, stockpiling, merchant-ship construction or expanded training for the reserve components. This might run another 3½ billion, it is estimated.

Gurney says his full committee will meet Monday to consider the situation. He hopes to have by then Forrestal's definite recommendations on the 70-group air program and other services, plus firm cost estimates for all the services.

While the House action in voting supreme air power was contrary to Forrestal's and President Truman's recommendations to Congress, the defense chief has had the entire matter restudied by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He has promised Congress a formal report in the matter.

Meanwhile, the House Armed Services Committee was hearing critics and opponents of a draft or universal military training bill and those who want changes in proposed measures.

Dr. Charles A. Thomas, president of the American Chemical Society and vice president of the Monsanto Chemical Co., of St. Louis, and Dr. Norman Shepard, chemical director of the American Cyanimid Co., urged draft deferments for scientsist.

"War is no longer solely a combat between fighting men," Thomas said. "Our survival as a nation depends more and more on our ability to maintain preeminence in the sciences and technologies."

Samuel R. Levering of Ararat, Va., representing the Friends Committee on National Legislation, and the Rev. Dutton Peterson of Odessa, N. Y., speaking for the New York State Council of Churches, opposed the draft.

Fear It Will Lead to War

Levering said he was against it because he is a Quaker "as well as an American Citizen." Mr. Peterson said his 4500 churches made up of 20 denominations feared a draft would lead to war.

H. D. Bollinger, representing the National Conference of Methodist Youth, said, he believes military leaders are trying to build an army to fight a hit-'em-first war with Russia

Both Bollinger and Levering spoke for a stronger United Nations.

U. S. Budget Estimated at 40 Billions

By The Associated Press

The next President may find himself a record peacetime spender of well over 40 billion dollars a year, whether he likes it or not.

Budget experts said yesterday that, whoever he may be, actions being taken now assure him of a rough time trying to make both ends of Government finances meet.

Speaking privately, they summed it up like this:

1. Higher spending in the future—particularly in the mid-1949 to mid-1951 period—is being virtually clinched by contract-letting authority now being conferred. Spending is shaping up from $37,700,000,000 this year toward 45 billion dollars in 1950-51. Senator Byrd (D., Va.) has warned it may hit 50 billion dollars.

2. The Government's income is heading down as a result of the $4,800,000,000 a year tax cut. Barring increased taxes or a windfall arising from inflation, it looks to be around or under 40 billion dollars after this year—too low to cover expenses.

3. The Government's unprecedently large current surplus has passed its high point and is going down now. Chances are the budget will slip into the red in a year or two—as it did for 17 straight years before a surplus was recorded last year.

The big item for which costs are rising and promising to continue climbing is military defense, on which spending is mushrooming while relations with Russia become more strained.

High ranking officials indicated President Truman, one of the many men who hope to be President after next January 20, has become concerned over future spending prospects. He was beaten in his attempts to keep Government income up by vetoing the tax cut.

Greeks Launch First Phase of Spring Drive

Athens, April 16 (AP).—The Greek army launched the first phase of it's spring offensive today wiht a three-sided squeeze on more than 2000 square miles of guerilla-infested territory in central Greece.

There was no official announcement, but a high source said "considerable forces are taking part."

He described it as a mopping-up operation. It was believed that there are about 4000 guerillas in the area, which lies north of the Gulf of Corinth.

Mountain artillery units and infantry had the coordinated aid of the air corps in the drive.

The entire offensive was planned amid strict secrecy. It was the first time since the guerilla war began that plans for a large operation were not known to a relatively large number of persons.

Tonight's general staff communique did not even mention the fighting in central Greec. The Greeks have been cautious about announcing an offensive because of the failure of last year's widely heralded attack.

Named to Head ECA Food Division

FitzGerald To Head ECA Food Program

President Truman is studying a list of "several nominations" for both deputy director and ambassador-at-large of the Economic Cooperation Administration, Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said yesterday.

Dr. Dennis A. FitzGerald, director of the International Emergency Food Committee, will be appointed head of the food division of the program, Hoffman said. FitzGerald, who resigned to take over the administration of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations of the Department of Agriculture, has supervised postwar international sharing of scarce commodities.

"Dr. FitzGerald is probably the greatest authority in the world on food procurement and distribution," Hoffman said.

The man Hoffman originally chose to be his deputy, he said, "had better luck with his doctor's examination than I had with mine. His doctor said he couldn't accept."

Hoffman added, in response to questions, that "it is not Dan Bell." Daniel W. Bell, Washington banker and former Undersecretary of the Treasury, had been rumored as Hoffman's choice for the No. 2 job.

Hoffman plans "an extremely small organization, especially at the Washington end," Richard Bissell, his assistant, told newsmen.

"ECA will never require more than a fraction of the number of people who have already applied" for jobs, Bissell said.

Banker Hits U. S. Support Of Its Bonds

By The Associated Press

A Cincinnati banker said yesterday it is "ridiculous" for the Federal Government to support the market prices of its bonds.

John J. Rowe, president of the Fifth Third Union Trust Co. of Cincinnati, told the Congressional Economic Committee that Government bonds may fall below their par value, but "what of it?"

If that happened, Rowe said, the declining price of Government securities would act as a deterrent to Congressional spending.

"Here you have the biggest borrower of all time, the United States Government, and all they are saying is that we'll indorse that note—the maker. It's ridiculous," he said.

Rowe also opposed the proposal to regulate bank credit by fixing the percentage of Government securities any bank shall hold.

"As long as production and prices call for high totals in dollars of industrial production," he said, "bank deposits will remain up, and bank loans holdings of Governments (bonds) will remain up.

"The judgment as to what is too much credit has to be made by each bank."

Baltimorean Takes Overdose of Sedative

New York, April 16 (AP).—A Baltimore socialite is in serious condition at a New York hospital suffering from an overdose of a sedative.

She is Mrs. Mary Carroll Ellicott, 35. Police listed her case as an attempted suicide. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Ellicott made her debut in 1930 at the Baltimore Bachelors' Cotillon and later married Dr. A. Hugh Warren of Kansas City. She has since resumed her maiden name.

Mrs. Ellicott was found in a Hotel Biltmore room.

Robbery Suspect Adjudged Insane

An Alexandria man under indictment in 10 housebreakings and safe robberies totaling $8000 yesterday was adjudged insane during a special hearing in Alexandria Corporation Court.

He is Edward Monroe, 38, of 730 N. Columbus st. The lunacy commission was made up of two doctors and Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls.

Monroe had been indicted for a series of 10 different robberies covering an eight-month period in 1947, Alexandria police said. Court officials said Monroe will be committed to the State hospital for the criminally insane at Marion, Va.

Arab Chief Claims Jew Attack Defeated

As Assembly Opens

New Fight For Partition Is Predicted

New York, April 17 (NYHT).—The special Palestine session of the United Nations General Assembly opened today amid reports and rumors that a bloc of small countries plans to demand the reaffirmation of Holy Land partition, while the United States is pondering a small-country mercenary army to keep Palestine orderly under a U. N. trusteeship.

The American delegation, it was learned at the Assembly hall at Flushing Meadow Park, did circulate privately a working paper outlining suggestions for a Holy Land trusteeship which the United States now supports instead of partition.

But no comment on this could be obtained from other countries.

Getting itself organized yesterday, the 57-nation Assembly elected anti-partition countries to its two key positions when Argentina and China, respectively, were named as Assembly president and chairman of the Assembly political committee.

Haganah Asserts Attempt to Cut Off Jerusalem Smashed

Jerusalem, April 16 (AP).—The Arab field commander of the Yarmuk army in northern Palestine declared tonight that his forces have pushed Haganah fighters back into Mishmar Haemek after defeating an attempt to encircle him.

Jewish sources said yesterday they had inflicted a decisive defeat on the army of Fawzi Bey al Kaukji in fighting around the Plain of Megiddo (Armageddon), strategic battlefield of many ancient wars.

A tour of the northern Palestine front showed the Arabs had reestablished control in their own villages in the Mishmar Haemek area, 15 miles southeast of Haifa.

"The Jews attempted to encircle us," the Arab field commander said, "but we brought up reinforcements and chased the Jews back."

The best estimates of confusing official and unofficial reports from both sides put the casualties at 10 or 12 dead on each side and a few more wounded.

Previous Jewish reports had claimed more than 100 Arabs killed and wounded in two days of fighting.

The car he was driving at 12:05 a. m. yesterday struck a guard rail on the Mount Vernon highway, near the entrance to the bird sanctuary at National Airport, smashed down 10 sections of rail before overturning. Shepard was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Arlington Rescue Squad, treated for shock and released. He told park police a passing car cut in front of him and forced him into the railing

Stassen Goes To Florida After Votes

By The Associated Press

Harold E. Stassen is flying to Florida today in an apparent effort to line up the 16 Florida votes to the Republican Presidential nominating convention. The primary election will be held there May 4.

Stassen called yesterday on Senators Gurney (R., S. Dak.) and Thye (R., Minn.).

He told a reporter he is restudying the entire requests for increased funds and manpower for the armed services. He said he was talking with senators about this.

Asked if his Florida trip were aimed at lining up Stassen delegates, the candidate for the Republican nomination replied:

"Things are looking very favorable for us there. The Florida State (Republican) chairman is a supporter of mine."

Stassen was to stop overnight at Charleston, S. C., then fly to Miami today to meet with Republican leaders for a luncheon.

Tonight he will speak before a Variety Club dinner in Miami.

Stassen, who won 19 of 27 GOP delegates in Wisconsin, then won last Tuesday presidential preference primary in Nebraska, said he expects to reach Ohio next week to begin an intensive campaign for delegates in the home state of Senator Taft (R., Ohio), one of his leading rivals for the nomination.

Stassen refused to say how many he hopes to win in the Ohio primary on May 4.

Taft Cancels Trip to Vermont

By Bert Andrews

Senator Robert A. Taft's concern over Harold E. Stassen's threat in the Ohio Republican Presidential primary was emphasized yesterday when Taft canceled a trip to Vermontto hurry to Ohio for an intensive speaking tour.

This development led associates to suggest that Taft might "open up" on Stassen by attacking his stands on many issues.

The setting for the Taft-Stassen fight in Ohio is this:

Ohio has 53 delegates, nine of them elected at large and 44 from the 22 congressional districts. Stassen is contesting for only one delegate at large and for 22 delegates from 11 congressional districts. The 11 districts include Ohio's large cities, where industry is important and where he hopes to capitalize on any labor dissatisfaction with Taft.

Ohio associates of Taft said it would be "normal" for Stassen to take four to six delegates. They conceded it would be "good" (for Stassen) if he takes eight or more. The inference reporters drew was that Stassen would seriously injure Taft's political standing if he should come anywhere close to winning all the 25 delegates he seeks.

Stassen, in Youngstown, Ohio, Thursday, challenged Taft to make the race in Ohio "a test of issues, not of organizations."

Senator Taft's friends in Ohio hope he will pick up the challenge and hammer at Stassen by name. Taft had intended to go to Vermont this weekend. Instead he flew to Cleveland. Save for one or two one-day round trips by air to Washington, he will campaign in Ohio from now on until the Primary on May 4.

U. S. Is Winning 'Cold War'

ciety cooperate with newspapermen in western Europe who are trying to organize an International Federation of Associations of Editors. With this was coupled a proposal that the society cooperate with other American newspaper organizations to study the idea of an International Institute of Press and Information.

Gideon Seymour, editor of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, told the society in the afternoon that "only about a dozen newspaper reporters in the United States today are equipped to write about atomic information accurately and with understanding." Competent witnesses, he said, had so informed the society's standing committee on atomic information.

Seymour, speaking for the committee, recommended that daily newspapers recognize the need for better reporting and interpretation of atomic information, and that the society work for the establishment of training courses for reporters and editors in this field.

W. W. Waymack, of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, said that there was "a terrifying want of understanding" in connection with atomic energy. He said that, for the next several years, the press would have to do the job which textbooks will be expected to do later.

Ben M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star and second vice president of the society, made a report on Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's efforts to guard American defense secrets. He said that, contrary to some reports, Forrestal was not in favor of formal censorship but some kind of voluntary censorship.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the Research and Development Board, told the society that "the peril of outright armed aggression and consequently of sudden full-scale war is as real today as it was 10 years ago."

"The hope of a final and lasting peace," Dr. Bush said, "depends as never before on continuing and successful development of the advanced weapons, the advanced techniques, which science and technology have made available to the military art.

"We know that unless we safeguard our own advances in these fields, we may expect to fight a possible future war with weapons as good as obsolete because the enemy knows both what they are and how to counter them. That is, we know that if we are careless, if we are gullible, we not only lose the staggering power of surprise, but indeed give that power over to the enemy in double terms."

Dr. Bush expressed confidence that joint action could be worked out whereby the Nation could be protected. He concluded:

"The freedom of the press is involved here, yes, and rightly so. The press of the democratic world today is the only press which has freedom to publish, and, be it remembered, freedom NOT to publish when in its considered judgment . . . the greater good is served by following the commonsense requirements to protect information that might be of aid and comfort to the enemy."

Hanson Baldwin, military affairs reporter for the New York Times, agreed that newspapermen must have a sense of responsibility and cooperate in maintaining secrecy on many weapons. At the same time, he said, they should be vigilant and continue to fight "stupid restrictions."

Nat Finney, a Washington correspondent of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, who recently won the Raymond Clapper Award, agreed with Baldwin. But newspapermen, he said, should make certain that the "areas of secrecy are respectable."

At a post-luncheon forum, three well-known Washington newspapermen discussed interpretive writing from this watchtower.

Arthur Krock of the New York Times said the news report out of the Washington bureau was never influenced by the paper's editorial policy. In writing his own editorial - page Washington column, he said, he tried to get behind the news and appraise, illuminate and analyze it.

Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor said straight news reporting was designed to give the reader more information, while interpretive writing was designed to give the reader more insight.

"Newspapers are not declining as a force or in the number of subscribers, but they are declining in the extent to which they serve and area read by their readers," Drummond said, adding:

"We face the prospect of becoming a declining force and perhaps a declining business. One step to give the newspaper a better grip on the minds of its readers is to print better documented, better interpretive writing."

Walter Lippman of the New York Herald Tribune said that news stories by and large do not, and cannot, alone present an intelligible picture of events.

"If the picture is to be intelligible," he said, "what happened yesterday has to be fitted in with what happened last week and long before that, and with what could happen, and what may happen tomorrow and in the future."

Speaking of the professional columnists, Lippmann asserted that they are editorial writers who specialize in keeping contact with affairs that have their center in Washington and in foreign capitals. He added:

"I think newspapers use these columnists because in a country as big as this one, and in an era when national an dinternational affairs have become extraordinarily complicated and important, it is no longer possible for any staff of editorial writers to do the whole work of explaining and interpreting all the news."

Lippmann thought it likely that, as time goes on and the country gets used to being a world power, the leading newspapers will have their own trained interpretive writers and thus will not depend on the syndicated columnist as they do today.

At the morning session, Dwight Marvin of the Troy Record, chairman of the society's journalism school accrediting committee, reported that there are now 520 schools of journalism, 120 of them awarding graduate degrees. He said that 42 are being examined to determine whether they should be accredited.

Norval D. Luxon of Ohio State University, president of the American Association of Departments and Schools of Journalism, said the accrediting program was a big step toward "the professional goal we all want to achieve."

Marvin H. Creager of the Milwaukee Journal told the editors that "it will take more than one visit to a school to enlist me in the idea that you can teach journalism in the classroom."

Alexander F. Jones of the Washington Post said that newspapers could do much to improve journalism schools by working with the schools.

Others who spoke on journalism schools and the accrediting program were Stephen C. Noland of the Indianapolis News, A. H. Kirchofer of the Buffalo Evening News, and Kenneth MacDonald of the Des Moines Register & Tribune.

Romania Puts Curbs on U. S. Oil Subsidiary

Bupcharest, April 16 (AP).—The Romanian Ministry of Mines and Petrol clamped down tonight on the Romano Americano, Romanian subsidiary of Standard Oil (New Jersey), and appointed a supervising administrator.

Similar action was taken against Shell Oil and Phoenix Transport, two British oil subsidiaries, in December last year. This is the first American capital investment to be placed under Romanian government control.

Reasons given for the new measure are: Romano Americano is accused of paying executives high salaries, specified as varying between $200 and $500 monthly. The accusation continues that, although executive personnel is only 1.84 of the total personnel, their salaries make out about one fifteenth.

The company is also accused of paying salaries to executives who have left the country. (This is probably a reference to former General Manager Rica Georgescu, who left the country legally more than a year ago, but has not returned.)

It also is alleged that the company's bookkeeping is not in order and that payments have been made without justification.

Federal Workers in Rockville Allowed to Seek Local Offices

The U. S. Civil Servce Commission yesterday announced it would permit Federal workers to campaign for and hold town offices in Rockville, Md.

The order exempts Rockville residents, because of the number of Federal employes living there, from many restrictions of the Hatch Act.

It was sought by the Rockville Civic Association, who pleaded that such exemption would benefit the town government materially with the technical and professional assistance of Federal employe residents.

According to a survey there, the commission said, an estimated 34 per cent of registered voters of Rockville are Federal employes or members of the immediate families of Federal employes.

The CSC said the privilege extended to designated municipalities in the immediate vicinity of Washington, under Section 16 of the Hatch Act, is limited to the following provisions:

1. The Federal employes must not neglect their official duties and must not engage in nonlocal partisan political activities.

2. They must not run for local office as candidates representing a political party or become involved in political management in connection with the campaign of a party candidate for office.

3. Federal employe candidates for local elective office must run as independent candidates and must conduct their campaigns in a purely nonpartisan manner.

4. If elected or appointed to local office, they may be required to give up their Federal post if the agency for which they work decides the town duties conflict with their Federal work.

5. The permission granted by the commission may be suspended or withdrawn by the commission when in its opinion the resulting activities are detrimental to public interest or unfavorabel to the proper inforcement of the political-activity law (Hatch Act).

Retail Sales Here Up 10% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Rallying strongly, Washington department store sales in the week ended April 10 scored a 10 per cent increase over the same 1947 period. In the previous post-Easter week, local sales showed a 20 per cent slump due to comparison with last year's pre-Easter week.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond added that Washington store sales in the four weeks ended April 10 showed no change from the same 1947 period.

The gain in retail sales was even more pronounced regionally and nationally in the latest week The Fifth Federal Reserve District showed a climb of 15 per cent, while nationally sales were 13 per cent higher.

Dun & Bradstreet yesterday noted that numerous clearance and promotional sales encouraged consumer buying. "Basement departments," the research agency commented, "continued to attract a large number of shoppers, while consumers evidenced little interest in high-priced and luxury goods."

Mild weather stimulated demand for spring and summer apparel in some areas.

For the first time in six years, the Hecht Co. will conduct an "anniversary sale." General Manager Charles B. Dulcan said yesterday that the fifty-second anniversary event will start today at both the Washington and Silver Spring stores and continue through April 24.

HEALTHY TREND: More people own their homes today than ever before, the Institute of Life Insurance said yesterday. Based on a United States census report, the number of owner-occupied dwellings in the United States rose to 21,300,000 in 1947, a 40 per cent gain over 1940. In all there are 31,100,000 occupied dwellings in the country, the institute estimated.

ODD LOTS: Four Washington women bank employes will attend a regional meeting of the Association of Bank Women in Boston April 23-25. They are Miss S. Winifred Burwell, Mrs. Nell Saylor, Mrs. Vera W. Rhine and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Brotherhood. . . . Commerce Department reporting a 3 per cent increase in business inventories during February brought total of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers stocks of goods to a record $42,750,000,000. . . . Sun Oil Co. has started supplying all its distributors and dealers with 5 per cent more gasoline, because of increased production facilities. . . . Colonial Airlines, whose slogan is "Safety Is No Accident," has entered its nineteenth year without fatality to passengers or crew member. . . . Executive Council of American Bankers Association will open session Sunday in French Lick, Ind. Among those from Washington who will attend are Robert V. Fleming, A. Scott Offutt, Thomas J. Groom and Wilmer J. Waller.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Charles L. Burpee has been named Washington general agent, passenger department, for Canadian Pacific and Soo Line, succeeding the late Charles E. Phelps . . . Graeme K. Howard, formerly vice president in charge of European exports for General Motors, has been appointed vice president and director of the international division of Ford Motor Co. . . . G. C. Pound, executive vice president of Kraft Foods Corp., has been elected a director of National Dairy Products Corp. . . . Thee newly elected directors of Chesapeake Broadcasting Co., Inc., of nearby Maryland, are: Thomas E. Jones of Maryland Public Service Commission, H. L. Curtis, furniture and storage proprietor, and William H. Limerick, filling station owner.

RECORD BUILDING: The largest first-quarter construction activity on record was reported by F. W. Dodge Corp. Dollar volume of construction contracts in 37 Eastern States was listed as $1,986,936,000 for the first three months of 1948. This surpassed by 23 per cent last year's record for the period. The agency said residential contracts held even with 1947, while nonresidential awards were up 42 per cent and heavy engineering contracts 46 per cent. Thomas S. Holden, president, noted that increased costs account for some, if not all, of the dollar gain.

BANK FIGURES: Highlights of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond's weekly report on 17 member banks:

Horning In

Eager as always to make capital of other people's troubles and suffering, the Communist Party Thursday staged a shabby, shameful demonstration in front of the White House and the Department of State. Headed by Benjamin Gold, a member of the national committee of the Communist Party, and disguised under the spurious, synthetic title of "United Committee to Save the Jewish State and the United Nations," several thousand Commie dupes, stooges and agents provocateurs engaged in the defilement and prostitution of a cause in which the hopes of millions of human beings, loyal Americans among them, are centered. No responsible Jewish organization has taken any part in this phony "National Committee." The Jewish War Veterans of the United States has denounced it as not concerned "either with the interest of the United States or the welfare or security of the Jewish people in Palestine."

Apart from causing some transitory embarrassment to responsible Jewish leaders and to those who are honestly striving to arrive at some rational solution of the difficult Palestine problem, this paltry strategem will no doubt fail in its purpose. If the demonstrators sought to provoke disorder in the Capital, they were thwarted by the intelligent precautions of the Metropolitan Police Department. Americans who give any thought to the situation cannot for a moment be misled, as the demonstrators apparently desire, into confusing Zionism with communism. The principal consequence of the trick will be to afford an additional illustration, although none is needed, of Communist mischievousness.

There is, of course, nothing new about this Communist technique of stultifying decent causes by giving them party support. Many a progressive organization seeking to promote the public welfare has suffered just this sort of baleful adherence and interference. Let us hope that by now it has become so common and obvious a trick that even the House Committee on Un-American Activities can no longer be taken in by it.

School Tuition

There should be little argument about the intent of Congress when it voted in the 1948 District Appropriation Act to exclude children of nonresidents from Washington schools without payment of tuition. It was apparent from the hearings that Congress meant to deny free access to the District schools to all persons who were not bona fide students in those schools at the time the act was passed. However, Congress was guilty of loose wording which has given rise to a great storm of protest. In stipulating the conditions under which nonresident students could continue to attend local schools, it used the word enrolled as the criterion. Some parents residing in suburban areas interpreted this to sanction the attendance of children who had been registered for the ensuing year before the passage of the act, even though those children had not been enrolled for the year 1946-47.

The result has been a Pandora's box of dissension. Acting under the implied congressional mandate and his responsibility to the General Accounting Office, School Superintendent Corning began sending tuition bills, at the rate of approximately $1 per day, to the parents of nonresident children who were not actually enrolled last year. However, a group of 38 such parents living in Montgomery County obtained a temporary injunction in District Court on the technicality that their children had been enrolled for this school year before last July 25. Meanwhile, since the injunction applied only to the particular Montgomery County group, the status or more than 400 other nonresident children remains in doubt and technically they can be excluded from school for nonpayment of tuition.

It is obvious that an injustice is being done to these 400 if tuition is to be required for them and not for the Montgomery County children. A further injustice lies in the fact that acceptance of enrollments before the school year began was a matter left up to individual schools to determine, and hence while some parents were able to squeeze under the July 25 enrollment wire, others with an equally valid claim were not. The Corporation Counsel is now appealing the injunction. If the injunction is upheld, however, the effect will be merely to confirm the discrimination.

The most obvious recourse would be for other nonresident parents also to seek an injunction. This, however, is a costly procedure. A more equitable approach might be for Congress frankly to recognize its mistake and to sanction free tuition for the remaining children in this category during 1947-48. But there should be no mistake about the future. The Board of Education has asked Congress for a law ending all exemptions after July 1. We believe this should be passed in unequivocal language. Attendance of nonresident children in District schools during 1946-47 cost District taxpayers nearly half a million dollars. There is no good reason why people who pay taxes to support Washington schools should assume this burden for children of persons who, even though they work here, pay taxes elsewhere.

Manuel Roxas

Our condolences to the Republic of the Philippines on the sudden and premature death of President Manuel Roxas. Roxas, a product of the American system of education in the islands, was a singularly attractive man, due partly to his intellectual nimbleness, partly to his Spanish blood. His wit and oratory made him a delight to listen to. He had to endure a lot of criticism because he stayed in the Philippines during the Japanese occupation and worked for it. But, as with many Filipinos, his service to the Japanese was pro forma, his services to the Americans real and valuable. He might well have been called the chief intelligence officer in Manila for the American Army during the long struggle for the liberation of the Philippines. That is why one of General MacArthur's first acts after victory was to clear Roxas of the charge of collaboration.

He was the logical choice for the Republic's highest office when freedom came in 1946. His record, to be sure, has not been spectacular. But there is merit enough in the bare fact that under his guidance the Republic has survived a birth which took place amid the disturbance and desolation left by war. Roxas had the same dynamic gift as Quezon for leading people of conglomerate racial strains. His successor, Elpido Quirino, is markedly different from Roxas except in his zeal to see the Philippines develop out of its swaddling clothes in tranquillity and health. Progress in achieving this aim will be watched with sympathy in this country, for the American people can never forget the years of shoulder-to-shoulder comradeship in war which gave the watching world one of the most magnificent epics in the global conflict.

Dodd To FAO

The selection of Undersecretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd as the new director general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization is a signal honor to a man well qualified to receive it. Under the direction of Sir John Boyd Orr, the fledgling international agricultural organization has had a good start—better than many of the U. N. subsidiaries. Aside from a few proposals turned down as impractical, it has enjoyed a substantial degree of international cooperation in the wide field of improving world food supplies and dietary standards. Much more remains to be done in the way of building confidence among member nations that the FAO is more than a theory-bound or drawing-board agency and that it is competent to undertake a bold program which can be understood in practical terms by people everywhere. A great deal hinges on the personality and drive of the director general. The job calls not only for a thorough knowledge of agriculture, but also for vision, for experience in politics, for statesmanship. It is a big job which should grow bigger.

As Undersecretary of Agriculture, Mr. Dodd has demonstrated his capacity to get along with farm organizations as well as Congress. Moreover, he has conducted many of the international activities of the Department of Agriculture and is respected as a man with an understanding of world problems. Barring the selection of an international food expert such as Dr. Dennis A. FitzGerald, the recently resigned head of the FAO International Emergency Food Committee, Mr. Dodd is probably as well-fitted a man as can be found to direct the FAO. His departure from the Department of Agriculture does, however, raise one question. Mr. Dodd was the most logical person to succeed Clinton P. Anderson as Secretary of Agriculture upon the latter's announced resignation to take effect shortly. It is no disparagement of Mr. Dodd's new post to inquire why he was passed over for the particular job he had understudied.

Crisis In Defense

The questions we raised last Monday—whether the intelligence agency had been caught napping in Bogota or whether it had been ignored—are now answered. Admiral Hillenkoeter has acquitted the Central Intelligence Agency of ignorance of Communist plans at Bogota to scuttle the Inter-American Conference. Evidently the State Department was at fault in cold-shouldering the warnings and in at least one case in preventing their dispatch to Washington. The charge is serious, and is compounded by State Department professions of innocence. In war no general would go into an engagement without the benefit of the eyes and ears of his intelligence officers. The same precautions apply to this cold war. By a narrow squeak the United States was saved from a diplomatic defeat which would have injured the Nation's prestige on the eve of the Italian elections. The coup was not successful because of Secretary Marshall's leadership and firmness. However, the Secretary of State cannot escape responsibility for ignoring the signals and putting his head into a Communist trap. What he risked was a diplomatic Pearl Harbor.

Several lessons will be drawn from the Bogota affair which, we hope, will be applied promptly. The lack of prestige of the intelligence function—the CIA even has to use the State Department code—and its communications are subject to ambassadorial veto—and the lack of liaison among the Government departments in respect of intelligence cannot be tolerated. Unification of intelligence is still a will-o'-the-wisp. Even in the defense establishment unification appears to be little more than a glittering facade. How in these circumstances can the Government "tick"? How can the Government expect the people to pull together in these crucial days if the Government is engaged in internecine tugs-of-war? What kind of preparedness is this for coping with aggression? A select (and we emphasize select) committee is needed to review the experience with intelligence and make recommendations for reform. The Committee on Expenditures is no place for such an important assignment. Since intelligence is located in the very front line of our national security, the job should be entrusted to a picked committee of Congress, and it should go about it in camera and we stress in camera. It must have caused intelligence officers a lot of astonishment to read Admiral Hillenkoeter at a public hearing. The British intelligence has been abused for the last 200 years, but has taken it on the chin, so as to keep its sources and its net under protection.

Lack of awareness of the importance of intelligence work is due to lack of understanding of the nature of the crisis in our relations with Russia. We have a cold war on our hands. That is to say, we have to deal with a subversive conspiracy operating chiefly in the dark and stealthily aimed at undermining the free world in general and the United States in particular. The appropriate means of combating the menace have not yet been mobilized, though, if we continue to let grass grow under our feet, the choice sooner or later will be a shooting war abroad or a bust at home. The task is far more civilian than military, and it calls for men who by their conduct are as jealous of upholding our institutions as of saving them from sabotage by the aggressor. Infiltration can come out of the measures for coping with it—let us not forget that.

The unawareness of what the present crisis is all about is plain in Congress as it is in the Administration. It was betrayed in the Spain amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act—obviously a military maneuver. It is demonstrated by acting as if a shooting war is on—an attitude which is bound to undermine European confidence in making ERP work. No European is going to invest in the future if the United States does not make of itself a shield and buckler of peace as well as an arsenal of preparedness. In the same category of misplaced emphasis is the smashing vote in the House in behalf of the 70-air group. Aggressive looking abroad, the vote, as we know at home, was a revelation partly of myopia, partly of escapism. The escapist legislators think that by this means they have discharged their duty toward the national defense, and can resume their scaremongering—the kind of scaremongering that, incidentally, Admiral Hillenkoeter himself encouraged by anticipating Bogotas in our American cities. All they have done is to add to what F. D. R. would have called the general discombobulation. Men are needed, men in uniform, and now—to back up our cold war diplomacy. There is no substitute for men in airplane contracts for future delivery. Nor is there any hope of winning the cold war as long as Congress tolerates and aggravates the existing disintegration in the defense organization.

Modern Government

The following is a verbatim quotation from the Congressional Record for April 12, regarding action on S. 2225, a bill transferring administration of the Federal Credit Union Act from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to the Federal Security Agency:

> The President Pro Tempore: Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?
> Mr. Wherry: Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I wonder if the distinguished Senator from Delaware (Mr. Buck), who is a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency from which the bill was reported, can give us an explanation of the bill.
>
> Mr. Buck: Mr. President, I am not familiar with the bill.
>
> Mr. Wherry: Is there any member of the Committee on Banking and Currency present who can give the Senate an explanation of the bill? Apparently there is no other member of the committee present who can do so.
>
> The President Pro Tempore: Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?
>
> There being no objection, the bill S. 2225 to transfer administration of the Federal Credit Union Act to the Federal Security Agency was considered ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed . . .

AN ANCIENT LEGEND

Oh, long had stood the empty hall
Where lowly ones and great
Tried out the horn upon the wall—
The magic horn that none could sound
But one, the master of the hound
That slept beside the gate.

And stranger after stranger came
Before the lord appeared.
(No lord looked he, who poor and lame
Drew down the trumpet from its hook
And set it to his lips that shook

The sleeping hound was called awake;
Green corn-blades pierced the loam,
And swans swam on the silver lake.
The castle thrilled from roof to ground
As round the hills the horn-blast wound:
"The wanderer is home."

Intelligence Evaluation

May I congratulate you on your excellent editorial, "The X At Bogota," of April 13, on Central Intelligence and its "evaluation" system? Having been engaged in similar activities for years, I beg to submit a few pertinent observations.

I have known people in the service who, often at the risk of their personal liberty and even their life, out of a keen sense of duty have obtained important information, sent it posthaste to the central authority, where very often it was "evaluated" by minimizing it, pigeonholing it, ignoring it. Indeed, the "evaluation" at headquarters consists in innumerable cases—I speak from personal experience—in condensing valuable, urgently needed information to oblivion.

I cannot refrain from adding, without unseemly pessimism, that administrative "efficiency" and bureaucratic impenetrability often go hand in hand with lack of vision, lack of real familiarity with the subject and oftener still with a tendency to "whittle off until little is left." To clear the desk, to bring highly actual matters to the tomb of the files or sweep them into the wastepaper basket is often considered "efficiency"—just as secretarial "efficiency" often consists of "do not let them reach the boss!"

And so it happens that while at one end—where things are happening—a man risks and maybe loses his life to get the right information to headquarters, at the receiving end this information is evaluated with a tolerant smile: "Oh, well, it surely isn't as bad as all that!"

Stemming Inflation

Economists and many other thoughtful citizens throughout the country view with alarm the anticipated impact of certain developments upon our domestic economy. Yet as recently as 10 days ago, Chairman Wolcott of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee disclaimed any necessity for steps to control this impact upon our economy.

Of number one importance is the activation of the European Recovery Program. That billions of dollars worth of materials and services will be syphoned from our domestic output to carry out our commitment to aid recipient countries under the plan is self-evident. One doesn't have to be steeped in the lore of economics to realize that a diminution of supply without a corresponding lessening of demand must necessarily create an inflationary impact upon our economy.

A second factor already on the congressional agenda but not as yet passed (although there is very little doubt in regard to its passage) is the appropriation increase for national defense outlays. Such legislation when enacted will have a twofold effect. Not only will accelerated demands of the defense program require materials (also to be diverted from our civilian market) but the program will also require manpower to be drawn from our civilian reservoir which is already in short supply. That both price and wage levels will be affected is also self-evident.

As citizens interested in the general welfare of the country, we have two channels of action. The first is within our own power of self-restraint. Instead of going hog wild in our purchasing of new household equipment and other items beyond the scope of necessities, we can purchase savings bonds. Fortunately, the opening of the Government's savings bond campaign should stimulate this step in the right direction.

Our second course of action is to prevail upon our representatives in Congress to immediately continue hearings with a view to deciding upon the best program to stem the tide of inflation. Only through looking far enough ahead can we fashion a course of action designed to at least ameliorate if not completely cure, the destructive disease of inflation.

Aid To France

Why has the silence of the French press kept the majority of the French people in ignorance of the fabulous American aid to France under the Marshall and previous plans? It is reported in the Saturday Evening Post that shipments of American wheat to France received no notice in the French press except as a small item in the shipping news on a back page. In direct contrast, this report also states that the mere mention that Russia will ship wheat to France is headlined in French newspapers.

If he can be counted on as a friend of America, why does the editor of a French publication send an article to our Harper's explaining why America should support French socialism instead of publicizing American aid to the French people in his own country?

Does not all this suggest that French Socialists in power might actually dislike the American system of free enterprise even more than the Russian brand of communism? Is it not possible that American aid is not publicized because French Socialists prefer their people to believe that the availability of wheat and tractors is due to successful Socialist operation rather than to American charity? Is it not also possible that by keeping the French people more or less agitated in favor of Russia, the French Socialist government believes it can play both sides against the middle and bait America into continued nervous support by the threat of communism?

"Three Musketeers"

I find it necessary to reply to the protests of C. J. Pilling 3d and L. L. E., in their letters of April 13 concerning the transformation of Cardinal Richelieu from Catholic to Protestant to escape the censure of the Legion of Decency. Both of these correspondents take it for granted that the legion requested, or even demanded, this change. I do not remember Drama Critic Coe's exact words, but I don't think he said exactly that.

Whether he did or not, I believe that this assumption is incorrect. It is entirely natural to assume that the legion objected to the transfer to the screen of Dumas' viciously prejudiced and patently untrue picture of Richelieu—it is very well known that the author of The Three Musketeers painted his villain as black as he could, without much regard for the truth. But nothing in the past performance of the legion leads me to suppose that it would request such an absurd change.

The ruse will be completely useless, too, because if the Cardinal is portrayed incorrectly, the legion will surely continue to object, whether he appears as a Protestant, a Jew, a Mohammedan or a Hindu! The legion, before now, has objected to the prejudiced portrayal of non-Catholic clergy, and will probably do so in this case, if the producers are foolish enough to go through with their present plans.

However, as L. L. E. says, Richelieu "wasn't such a foul character," and I honestly believe that no one would object if he were portrayed as a real human being, with a good and a bad side, on the screen. But let the film show him as the blackest villain this side of the Middle Ages—as it will if it follows the book—and millions of people, Catholic and others, will object.

Let the film show us the truth on this historical character, and the legion will not object. What's more, I am optimistic enough to think that L. L. E. and Mr. Pilling will second the legion's approval!

"70-Group Booby Trap?"

Where does The Washington Post get its facts in its editorial of April 14 for the conclusion that we can't have a 70-group Air Force except at the expense of "other necessary and more immediate measures?" Your editorial writer who implies that a 70-group program is a booby trap has taken as gospel the "formula" that Mr. Forrestal has been trying to cram down our throats.

Mr. Forrestal keeps saying that enlarging the Air Force would upset the "balance" of the armed forces. We in the Veterans of Foreign Wars do not believe this. At our last national encampment we voted first priority to air supremacy.

Before we decide that Mr. Forrestal's stand is purely objective, let's explore his "balanced force" formula. Is it based upon a cold military analysis of the present situation or upon a desire to protect status quo interests? The present disproportionate balance of forces does not stand up under cold analysis.

The first thing to consider in any military planning is who are we fighting and what are his capabilities? His weaknesses? Russia has no navy of consequence, whereas we have the strongest in the world. Napoleon and Hitler made the mistake of seeking decisions with Russia with mass armies. In addition to her vast distances and severe winters, Russia has no qualms about burning up manpower. Therefore, the balance is in our favor by sea, yet by land we have great disadvantages.

The air is the one element where our industrial resources and know-how (controlling factors in two wars) can control the balance. Russia knows this and is well along on a five-year plan to reach air supremacy. Such an analysis shows our air arm is not in proper balance with the ground and sea forces—for any security against Russia. Until we get air supremacy the other arms are sitting ducks.

Mr. Forrestal's stand in this controversy over air power is best described in the words of former Secretary of War Henry Stimson. Writing about his World War II job, Mr. Stimson says: "Some of the Army-Navy troubles grew mainly from peculiar psychology of the Navy Department, which frequently seemed to retire from the realm of logic into a dim religious world in which Neptune was God, (Admiral) Mahan his prophet and the United States Navy the only true church." All I can say is "Bishop" Forrestal appears to be holding true to his dogma.

KARL O. SPIESS,
Chairman, National Defense Committee, Department of Virginia, Veterans of Foreign Wars.
Fairfax, Va.

Editor's Note: The Washington Post did not say that we can't have a 70-group Air Force except at the expense of other necessary and more immediate measures. Nor did it challenge the concept of air supremacy. What it did imply is that we will be creating a booby trap if we put all our faith in a 70-group Air Force to the exclusion of the other forces necessary to support and augment its operations.

Squandering Food Resources

By Malvina Lindsay

Diet Inventory

AMERICAN EATING habits and food waste are coming up again for appraisal as the Nation takes stock of its defense strength and as food goes to the world fronts in the cold war.

What we are hearing now about our diet does not hold promise for the Nation's future health. Nutritional biochemists tell us we are not, as we complacently supposed, the best fed people in the world, but rather the "most fed"; that many primitive people have better nutrition than ourselves.

Economists point out that our dependence on the more costly animal products, as meat, milk, butter, eggs, has put us in a vulnerable position as real buying power has declined. And they predict that 90-cent butter and 70-cent eggs are here to stay.

Tests made by the Department of Agriculture show nutritional ignorance so great that comparatively few families are prepared to make proper substitutions as they cut down on meat and dairy products in the face of high prices.

Child welfare authorities report that the majority of children have only fair nutrition, that a large proportion bolt inadequate breakfasts and use their spending money during the day for candy, gum, soft drinks and cookies.

Dental authorities warn that tooth decay is rapidly increasing because of children having too civilized a diet with too much sugar and too many refined, starchy foods that do not require much chewing.

ON TOP of all this, the World Food Organization warns that the world food situation is still critical from shortages, and suggests that nations with surplus food make the best possible use of what they have. In both Europe and Asia the pressures of hunger are preparing the soil for communism or other forms of totalitarianism.

The European Recovery Program will get food to some critical areas. But it now looks as if for a long time to come this country as a measure of self-protection, as well as of humanitarianism, will need to keep food moving to the trouble spots of the world. As Sir John Boyd Orr, retiring director of the World Food Organization, recently pointed out, the test of today's civilization is whether or not it can meet the primary food needs of its people.

That means that this country, greatest food producing Nation, will have to concern itself with food production and food conservation on a long-term basis. Also in order to fill its new world role it will need stronger, more intelligently nourished citizens. A disturbing number of youths rejected in the last draft had defects rooted in nutritional deficiencies. While economic privation was partly responsible, nutritional ignorance also strongly entered into this.

RECENT surveys show one basic weakness in the American diet is lack of vitamin C foods, as citrus fruits, tomatoes and cabbage. Americans are also going too light on such surplus foods as canned vegetables, fruits and potatoes. The meat eating habit is so strong that the average family is likely to cut down on such an essential as milk to gratify it. In many homes improper cooking methods destroy valuable food elements. And the desire for animal products and refined foods means greater demand for grain, the product most needed for shipment abroad.

Widespread adult education in nutrition was carried on during the war. The Red Cross still conducts such classes. Home economics instruction in schools and colleges is enlarging, yet only one American girl in three receives this in grade school. The Department of Agriculture survey showed that women with high school education knew the most about nutrition—and practiced their knowledge.

Now with the great efforts under way to make the Nation strong by means of armies and airplanes there seems need for a supplementary program in nutrition and food conservation. Both the waste of manpower and the waste of food that result from nutritional illiteracy are a drain on a Nation that needs to remain both strong and generous.

Tax On Pensions

The Government of the United States does not grant a pension or disability compensation to reclaim a portion in the form of a tax. Neither does it make provision for its apportionment among others. In fact it specifically excludes shareholders of all species. The United States Government does not tax (a) pensions and disability compensation or (b) disability retirement pay. It enjoins the same restraint on all authorities. A great deal of publicity has been devoted to this fact.

Yet right here in the Nation's Capitol, disability benefits of certain disabled veterans are taxed to accord with the policies and precedents of the Government of the District of Columbia.

The D. C. Income Tax Act states "Payments of benefits made to or on account of a beneficiary under any of the laws relating to veterans" are exempt from taxation. The law is clear. It does not differ from Federal law in this respect.

I cannot respond for soldiers, but I do know that the disability benefit bestowed upon sailors who have given 16 years or more to the service of their country is taxed by the District of Columbia, I believe, in violation of the D. C. Income Tax Act, the Statutes of the United States, and the will of Congress and the people

Bogota Uprising

A Communication

ANY SENSIBLE person will, of course, accept the United States Government's now official—and The Washington Post's—declarations that the recent riots at Bogota were due to international communism, as soon as evidence is forthcoming as moving as the fervor of our statesmen's and editorial writers' denunciations.

That international communism was doing its political and editorial best to discredit and no doubt to wreck the Ninth Pan-American Conference, now in session at Bogota, is established by the equal fervor of the counterpropaganda with which it has attempted to offset our propaganda.

But wishfulness among leftist zealots no more creates all current Latin-American uprisings than wishfulness in the State Department and among its apologists necessarily makes for accurate reportage and deduction. Mob scenes like the ones at Bogota were an established phase of practical politics in Latin America before Karl Marx, much less Josef Stalin, entered kindergarten.

A few points about the Bogota developments can well bear examination.

THE BOGOTA riots were provoked by the assassination of Jorge Eliecer Gaitan. Gaitan was a Huey Long-like character with a huge Huey Long-like following whose emotional responses are conditioned by Latin-American mestizo environment and chronic social and economic underprivilege. Who killed Gaitan, then—and why?

The mob's deduction that some member of the reactionary Falangist groups at the extreme right of the Colombian Conservative Party did it is at least as plausible as wishful assumptions that the Communists did. After all, Gaitan had split the Colombian Liberal Party in the 1946 elections, brought the bungling Conservatives back into power, was a chronic rabble-rousing force for political disturbance—and so, above all other potential caudillos in Colombia, a lasting convenience to international communism.

Even "woman trouble" is to be rated as at least as flattering an explanation of Gaitan's taking off as the theory that he was martyred by the comrades. Nor should the fact he overlooked that Colombia breeds almost as many crackpots per population per square mile as Kansas. In any case, until it is known who shot Gaitan, and his motives, some area of fumbling remains in all our guesses as to what the rioting was all about. Unless it is established that the Communists disposed of Gaitan directly to incite Bogota's mobs, the assertion that everything which followed was a planned disturbance becomes less attractive to balanced judgments.

THE FACT that the mobs moved quickly into the Pan American Conference's meeting hall, on fire and destruction bent, is cited as prima facie evidence of Communist direction. How many individual Marxists may have infiltrated themselves into command of this and that little group of mobsters by saying, "Hey, let's burn this!"—is a question for Bogota's skillful reporters to answer. It is reasonable to suppose something of the sort may have happened in various instances.

But the Bogota mobs, cold, hungry, ill-clad, hovel-housed, inflation-tortured, and fed up with promises of inter-American cooperation and neighborliness which so far have failed to relieve their distress, would hardly have needed Communist infiltrators to remind them that it was exhilarating to the Latin temperament to wreck a few Pan American typewriters and burn a few flags and records. In fact, Colombia's present Foreign Minister, Laureano Gomez, as a professional gringo-baiter, essential Falangist and die-hard apologist for Hitler and Spain's Caudillo Franco (though certainly no Communist) has spent a lifetime warning the Bogotanos against the perils of the United States influence in inter-American affairs. The spirit of violence against Pan Americanism and against the United States in particular was hatched in his brilliantly reactionary newspaper, El Siglo, quite as much as in Moscow; and more constantly, if not more effectively.

Not much can be made out of the fact that the mobs moved in on Bogota's communications and power supply centers. This is an established technique of all Latin-American revolutionaries, left, right, or middle-of-the-road. It dates back before the railroads. See eyewitness accounts of the revolutions for and against Mexico's Emperor Augustin I (Iturbide) in the early 1820s.

ONE NEED NOT be impressed by Bogota's police apparently having been for the abortive revolutionists, and the army for the government. Political shooting differences between army and police are also in the familiar Latin-American revolution pattern. In Venezuela's October, 1945, revolution — which government higher-ups and reactionary members of the Caracas American colony also called Communist—the same split occurred, except that in Caracas the police were progovernment.

Bogota's general looting may have been Communist-inspired, but it certainly was not orthodox Marxism. The usual procedure is to preserve goods stocks for the coming Soviet Socialist state and its beneficiaries. Looting would have been "a natural," considering the Bogota masses' state of underprivilege, if the riots had been part of a rightist revolution to restore Colombia to the dominion of Franco Spain.

A lady observer's declarations in a Washington Post interview on her return to Washington that plotted Red revolution was indicated by the fact that women were passing out knives and rum bottles to the mobsters leaves one, if possible, even colder. This, too, is standard procedure. Hardware and liquor stores are looted early in all revolutions. One net effect is to make lady revolutionaries feel helpful and generous—left or right.

FOR A nation which would appear to have a security stake in not making up its mind as quickly as its Secretary of State on the tangles of a complex and distressingly foreign political situation, it would seem that the points just brought up would bear mature consideration.

Carrying on with the conference in Bogota can be, of course, more than a grim face-saving arrangement. Even under the overshadowing charm of so recently removed pro-Franco, pro-Hitler Foreign Minister and Conference President Gomez, members of the United States delegation and their aides may yet find time, if curious, to discover what makes Colombia tick—and occasionally stop ticking. There is no better place than Bogota, indeed, for them to discover that an inter-American system cannot run on words, financial loans and doles to guntoters alone; but that living standards and adequate supplies of civilization's goods are its basic machinery.

Bogota Starts Cleaning Up Street Debris

Bogota, Colombia, April 16 (AP). Bulldozers, trucks and 4000 street cleaners today began clearing away the debris from Colombia's uprising of a week ago.

The return of normal conditions was indicated by the announcement of tentative plans for holding the funeral of Liberal leader Jorge Gaitan on Sunday. Gaitan's slaying by an assassin, who afterward was lynched, set off an orgy of burning, looting and slaying which the government has attributed to Communist inspiration.

Plans for the funeral have been delayed because the government feared it would be made the occasion for new demonstrations.

Until now Gaitan's widow also has declared she would not permit the funeral as long as President Ospina Perez, a Conservative, reminded in office. Ospina, however, has declared he would not leave the presidential office except by force. Prominent Liberal leaders are now cooperating in his government.

[Left-wing rebels remain in control of the country's only oil refinery, at Barranca Bermeja, the United Press quoted a Tropical Oil Co. spokesman as saying.]

Union leaders called on oil workers to return to work. Stores and offices are reopening. Transportation is slowly resuming.

The government said 80 persons have been arrested in conection with the uprising.

A night curfew remained in effect. One person was killed last light near the United States Embassy by a sniper's bullet.

The 21-nation inter-American conference continued to meet in emergency quarters in a school building at the edge of the city. A conference statement said the committee on economic affairs had agreed to discuss a Cuban proposal to ban "economic aggression" and a Bolivian plan for "economic security." The two proposals were sent to subcommittees.

Red Uprisings Forecast In 3 Latin Countries Soon

Mexico City, April 16 (U.P.). Communists plan new uprising in at least three Latin American countries soon, Gen. Rene Picado, Costa Rican Minister of Public Security, said today.

He predicted that there will be Communist-sponsored uprisings, either as armed revolts or well-planned labor stoppages, in Chile, Venezuela and the British Caribbean colony of Jamaica.

Brown Assails Envoy Power Of 'Censorship'

Congress may have to act to prevent Ambassadors abroad from stopping the transmission of intelligence reports, Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) said yesterday.

Brown is chairman of a House subcommittee that is trying to discover whether the Government had advance warning of the Bogota uprising on April 9, and if not why not.

His committee was told on Thursday that a stream of warnings had come from Bogota through the Central Intelligence Agency, but that one of them—a message telling of possible "personal molestation" of American delegates—had been blocked, on the orders of a State Departemnt official in Bogota.

Under present State Department rules, the sending of an intelligence message to Washington requires the consent of the Ambassador or other ranking official. Brown insisted, however, that it was never the intention of Congress in setting up the CIA to give any such "power of censorship" to the State Department.

"It may be necessary for Congress to enact additional legislation to give the CIA the independent status it was generally presumed to enjoy," Brown said.

He described the Bogota rising as "a South American Pearl Harbor," and said the security of the Nation was involved in the prompt transmission of intelligence reports. He promised "to explore this matter vigorously," with further hearings next week.

A part of Thursday's testimony before Brown's subcommittee was called "contemptible" yesterday by C. B. Baldwin, campaign manager for Henry A. Wallace's third-party movement.

Baldwin was angry over the statement by Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenboetter, director of CIA, that the assassinated Colombian liberal leader, Jorge Filecer Gaitain "might have been called in his very leftist standards similar to Henry Wallace in our country." He said the admiral had joined "the chorus of hate," and accused the State Department of tactics of "smearing all opposition."

Arguments Ended in Jap Crimes Trial

The 11 justices of the Allied tribunal recessed to prepare their decision after the prosecution asked death for former Premier Hideki Tojo and all 24 of his fellow-defendants.

The one time elite of Japan may learn their fate by June. The justices have estimated six weeks to two months will be needed to write the judgments.

This will wind up history's longest criminal proceeding. The trial opened June 3, 1946.

Frank S. Tavenner of Roanoke, Va., closed the arguments with a prosecution declaration that all the defendants had directed Japanese aggression from 1928 and had full knowledge that it was illegal.

40 Survivors of Tokyo Raid Hold Reunion

Minneapolis, April 16 (AP).—A group of 40 survivors of the first American bombing raid on Tokyo gathered today in Minneapolis, the city where they were asked to volunteer for a "mission of great hazard."

Three days of dinners, cocktail parties and informal "gabfests" with but one business meeting were on the schedule. Sunday will be the sixth anniversary of the bombing attacks on five Japanese cities, commanded by Gen. James (Jimmy) Doolittle.

Film Red Case Nearing Jury

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Justice Edward M. Curran yesterday said the first Hollywood communism case probably would be given to a District Court jury Monday.

The justice has made it plain that the case will turn on just one point—did Movie Writer John Howard Lawson refuse to tell Congress whether he was, or ever had been, a Communist Party member?

If he did, then he would be liable to a $1000 fine and 4 to 12 months in jail for contempt of Congress.

If, as his lawyers claim, he did not refuse—but was put off the witness stand before he got around to answering—then he would be freed.

Lawson's lawyers yesterday closed their defense without Lawson taking the stand to tell his side of his appearance before the House Un-American Activities Committee last fall.

Four Congressmen called by the defense did not come to court. When defense counsel said they hoped to get the Congressmen to admit they were out to get Lawson and others in the movie business who were suspected of communism, Justice Curran said the Congressmen need not appear, because he would not allow such questions to be asked. As long as the House committee had a lawful purpose, the justice said, the motives of its members—even if they had them—would have nothing to do with the duty of witnesses to answer questions.

Lawson's counsel then raised the claim that the subcommittee that questioned Lawson was illegal—saying this was the strong point of their case. Justice Curran asked for briefs on the law of subcommittees.

The 12 jurors have heard about two hours of testimony during the whole week. Yesterday they heard none at all, spending the whole day in the courthouse halls, or in a spare jury room that was vacant for awhile.

No Reds, Says Ohio State

Columbus, Ohio, April 16 (U.P.). Ohio State University today withdrew recognition from the Progressive Citizens Committee as a campus student organization and warned its faculty and students that it wants no Communists on its campus.

In announcing the action, Dr. Howard L. Bevis, university president, said:

"The Progressive Citizens Committee was given recognition on the . . . campus upon the filing of a statement of purposes and objectives of a highly desirable character. It now clearly appears that it pursues purposes and objectives quite at variance with those set forth with its application."

Dr. Bevis said "I will not, knowingly, have Communists on our faculty, if I can prevent it."

He added that since it is not illegal to be a Communist, the university has no right to refuse them attendance "if such students conduct themselves probably."

"But I will not recognize, neither will I provide university facilities for organizations composed of, or dominated by Communists. I will not permit the use of university facilities for Communist purposes."

450 Chicago U. Students Attend 'Peace Strike'

Chicago, April 16 (U.P.).—An estimated 450 of the University of Chicago's 7000 students today attended a two-hour "peace strike" at which speakers praised Henry Wallace.

The demonstration, held on the campus, was backed by five student groups. Students sang songs and carried placards which said:

"Keep Kilroy in civvies."

"Send UMT (universal military training) over the hill."

"We don't want to be the widows of World War III."

The students listened to speeches by Sam Parks, an official of the striking CIO United Packinghouse Workers, and George Cooley, vice chairman of the Illinois Progressive Party, which supports Wallace's third party presidential candidacy.

Federal Jury Convicts Best Of Treason

Boston, April 16 (U.P.).—Former Foreign Correspondent Robert H. Best was convicted of treason today as result of his wartime propaganda broadcasts for the German short-wave radio during World War II.

Best

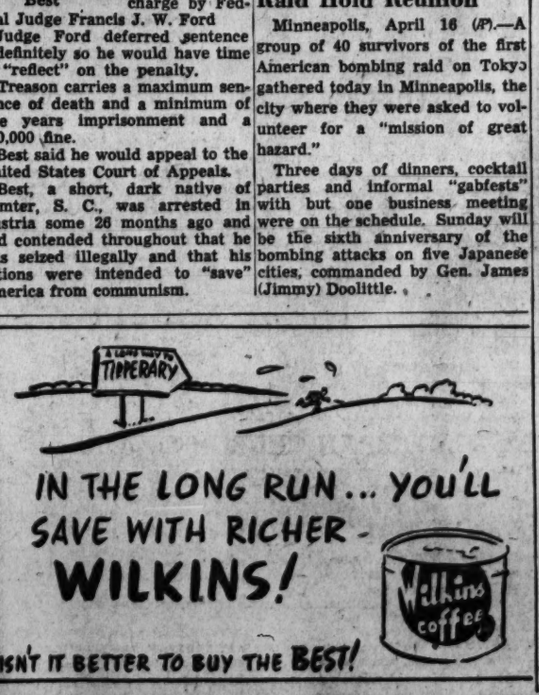
The conviction came on his 52d birthday, which he had spent in the courtroom, listening to a charge by Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford

Judge Ford deferred sentence indefinitely so he would have time to "reflect" on the penalty.

Treason carries a maximum sentence of death and a minimum of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Best said he would appeal to the United States Court of Appeals.

Best, a short, dark native of Sumter, S. C., was arrested in Austria some 26 months ago and had contended throughout that he was seized illegally and that his actions were intended to "save" America from communism.



Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Airline Subsidy Lobby

NEW NOMINATIONS keep coming in for the Oscar for the year's most high-powered lobbying. With reenforcements swelling the ranks of the pressure boys from day to day in this era of bigger and better lobbies, the judges have an almost impossible task.

Childs

Claim to the honor is being pressed in behalf of the big five airlines that carry most of the country's mail and passenger traffic. And it's an impressive claim.

The Civil Aeronautics Board just awarded the big five—American, Eastern, TWA, United and Northwest—an increase in mail pay which will cost the taxpayer at least an additional 5 million dollars over and above the 21 million they now get. The increase is proposed although Eastern Airlines will show a rate of profit computed by CAB at 36 per cent after taxes, and the other four companies will average a 10 per cent return.

There is a report that Senator Homer Ferguson and Senator Styles Bridges are getting interested in an investigation into the whole mail-subsidy system. Such an investigation occurred not long after the Democrats came into power in 1933. It produced some sizzling facts about the power of the lobbies working for ocean and air mail subsidies and the tactics they employed.

Figuring out the actual cost of carrying the air mail, in relation to the subsidy payments, is something the CAB has never got around to doing. The question of cost, particularly when the airlines talk about it, is surrounded by such clouds of statistics, qualifications and reservations that the ordinary person is left in a state of confusion.

BUT HERE is a significant contrast. With the new pay increase included, the CAB finds that the big five must get 58 cents a ton-mile as a "service rate" for carrying the mail. At the same time the big five have applied for, and CAB has approved, rates for carrying cargo as low as 12½ cents a ton-mile.

Since the air mail is business which does not have to be solicited, and since the ground handling is performed by the Government, it is extraordinary that CAB should find that carrying the mail costs almost five times as much as carrying cargo.

Put another fact alongside this. Ambitious young veterans have formed a number of air freight lines. For two years these small companies have waited for CAB to act on their applications to operate chartered routes. Thus far not a single application has been granted. Some of the little companies have had to fold up, a fact which one of the big five executives noted with smug self-satisfaction not long ago.

This is true even though cargo traffic and the development of cargo planes have lagged far behind both economic and military necessity. Every politician professes to be for little business and competition. Yet these veterans' airlines have not been given a chance to show what they could do toward developing the great potential of air cargo traffic.

ONE OF the few experts to interest himself in this phase is Langdon P. Marvin, jr., During his wartime service with the Navy, Marvin was chairman of the Air Cargo Priorities Committee, learning by actual experience in every corner of the globe how vital cargoes could be carried by air. To several congressional committees he has pointed out how urgent is the need for cargo development.

It is even more apparent on the military side. Military sources have estimated that 4000 cargo planes would be essential at the outset of a war in which the new-type German submarines would be used in large numbers. The certified airlines at present have fewer than 70 such planes.

It is not so much that the airlines are operating at a high ratio of cost to the Government. What is serious is that, so long as the cushion of the subsidy is there, the Nation is not likely to get the kind of expansion which is vital to national security both at home and abroad.

A thoroughgoing Senate investigation would look into the foreign field, too. Postoffice records show that Pan American Airways got $16,656,624 in mail pay last year and is petitioning CAB for 11 million dollars more.

In Joseph J. O'Connell, jr., the CAB has a new chairman. A new member is still to be appointed. There is a chance to break away from the course of least resistance, which is increasingly to give everything to a few dominant companies. It will not be easy to change the pattern. But there is still time if there is also the will to make the change.

Costa Ricans Extend Truce Until Today

San Jose, April 16 (U.P.).—A three-day truce in the Costa Rican civil war was extended today until 5 a. m. Saturday to permit continuation of peace negotiations.

United States, Mexican and Papal Ambassadors are acting as intermediaries in the talks that began Tuesday.

Both sides were reported authoritatively to have agreed on the major points of the settlement, but the means of carrying them out have necessitated long conversations between President Teodoro Picado and Father Benjamin Nunez, emissary of Gen. Jose Figueres, the right-wing revolutionary commander in chief.

United States Ambassador Nathaniel P. Davis, Mexican Ambassador Carlos Ojeda and Papal Nuncio Alberto Centoz have completed five round trips to and from the front lines escorting Father Nunez, the bearer of Picado's and Figueres' proposals and counter-proposals.

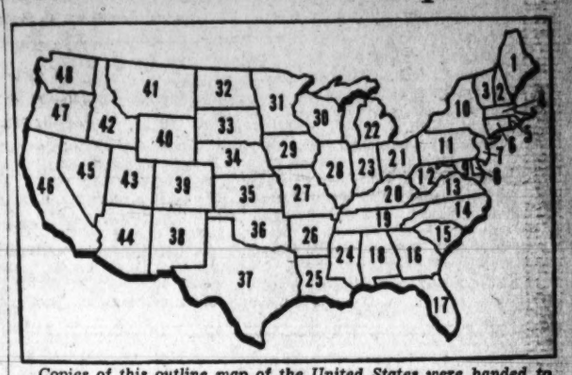
Can You Pass This Map Test?



Copies of this outline map of the United States were handed to voters in a coast-to-coast Gallup Poll, and each person was asked to identify 10 of the States shown. How many can YOU spot correctly?

Here are the 10 States to identify. In the space opposite each State write down the numeral shown on the map which you think correctly identifies that State. For example Washington is No. 48 on the map.

California	Ohio .....
Texas	Michigan .....
Pennsylvania	New Jersey .....
New York	Massachusetts .....
Illinois	Missouri .....

The average person with college training was able to get 8 out of 10 States correctly located. People with only a high school education got 6.3 out of 10 right, on the average. The average voter with grade school only or no school was correct on 4.1 of the 10. The average for everybody was 5.5 correct out of 10.

ANSWERS

California, 46; Texas, 37; Pennsylvania, 11; New York, 10; Illinois, 28; Ohio, 21; Michigan, 22; New Jersey, 7; Massachusetts, 4; Missouri, 27.

The Gallup Poll

Sampling Shows Americans Would Flunk Geography Test

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., April 16.—The average American would not get a passing grade on a simple classroom quiz on United States geography.

Almost one in five Americans cannot correctly spot California on an outline map of the country, the same is true of Texas. Less than 6 out of 10 know the location of Pennsylvania; likewise, only 58 per cent know where New York State is.

Half the people or less can point to Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Missouri.

Field reporters for the American Institute of Public Opinion showed thousands of typical men and women an outline map of the United States in which the States were numbered but not named. The respondents were asked to locate by number each of the 10 States selected for the test because they have the largest populations.

The general public	55%
Men	60
Women	51
College trained people	80
High school trained people	63
Grammar school trained people	41

In other words the average person named 5.5 of the 10 States correctly. Two earlier polls in the "geographical derby" showed that the typical American can correctly locate 5 out of 12 European countries and less than 3 out of 8 South American nations.

Japs Claim Catch Of Record Whale

Tokyo, April 16 (U.P.).—Japanese whalers back from the Antarctic said today they caught a 320,812-pound blue whale, the largest ever weighed part by part.

The whale, a female, was 89 feet long with a circumference of 43½ feet. The heart alone weighed 900 pounds. Meat products totaled 95,256 pounds and provided 133 barrels of whale oil. The liver weighed 2352 pounds and yielded 814 pounds of oil.

The skull was 23 feet long and 10 feet wide.

Archbishop to Bless New St. Anne's Church

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of the Washington Archdiocese will bless the new $582,000 St. Ann's Catholic Church, Wisconsin ave. and Yuma st. nw., Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

The blessing will be followed by a solemn pontifical mass celebrated by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, vicar-general of the Washington Archdiocese and rector of St. Gabriel's Church. Archbishop O'Boyle will preside and preach.

The Rev. Joseph Slattery, C.S.P., of the Paulist Fathers, will be deacon of the mass; the Rev. John W. Stafford, C.S.V., of the Viatorian Fathers, sub-deacon; the Rev. Walter J. Schmitz, S.S., of the Sulpician Seminary, master of ceremonies; the Rev. Timothy N. MacCarthy, pastor of St. Margaret's Church, Seat Pleasant, assistant priest to Bishop McNamara; the Right Rev. Msgr. Thomas G. Smyth, rector of Blessed Sacrament Church, Chevy Chase, and the Right Rev. Msgr. Edward P. McAdams, rector of St. Joseph's Church, deacons of honor to the Archbishop. Monsignor Smyth is a former rector of St. Ann's. The St. Ann's Choir of Men and Boys, directed by Russell Young, will sing.

Among the other dignitaries participating in the mass will be the Rev. Henry D. Collins, pastor of St. Ann's, and his two assistants—the Revs. Russell A. Phelan and Vincent P. Cieri.

The new St. Ann's edifice, in the Thirteenth Century Gothic style, is constructed of limestone and brick. It will seat 1600 persons. On the high archways of the entrance, and overlooking heavy oak doors, is a buffed limestone statue of St. Ann.

One of the oldest Catholic parishes in the city, St. Ann's first held services in 1869 in what was then called Tenleytown Village. Jesuit priests trekked over the hill from Georgetown University to say masses for the Catholics of the community.

The present pastor, Father Collins, went to St. Ann's in 1939 from St. John's Church, Long Green Valley, Md. He is a graduate of Georgetown Preparatory School; St. Charles College in Ellicott City, Md., and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore. He was ordained by Cardinal Gibbons in 1916.

Mortgage Burning to Mark Cleveland Park Anniversary

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Members of Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 34th and Lowell sts. nw., will celebrate its thirtieth anniversary April 25 to May 2, by burning its church and parsonage mortgage.

Recollecting that the congregation was founded April 29, 1918, in a temporary structure on the present site, Dr. Alfred Wesley Hurst, pastor, commented:

"In those days, Lowell and Porter sts. were the only paved cross-town streets connecting Connecticut and Wisconsin aves. North of Porter st., Connecticut and Wisconsin aves. were still unpaved and the vicinity around the church was sparsely settled. Our folks tell of traveling the muddy roads near the church and of heating the temporary structure with six gas burners in the kitchen. The present edifice was completed 25 years ago. The parsonage was bought four years ago. Roy D. Voshall will be general chairman of the anniversary celebration."

Dr. Bayley Will Preach At Hamline

Congregation Plans Taking Over Pulpit

There will be a change of pace Sunday at 11 a. m. at Sixth Presbyterian Church, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw.

The pastor, Dr. Earl Franklin Fowler, will descend from his pulpit to permit members of his flock to speak on problems confronting present-day Christians. Dr. Fowler, who will simply guide the discussion, says:

"The congregation knows of this plan but does not know of the nature of the questions which will be thrown out to them; consequently, the speaking will be spontaneous and quite extemporaneous."

Daughters of the King To Meet at St. Albans

The Daughters of the King, Washington Episcopal Diocese, will hold their annual meeting April 22 at St. Alban's Church, Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. nw. Bishop Angus Dun will celebrate communion at 10 a. m., assisted by Dr. Charles T. Warner.

Shenton Lodge, a former pastor of the church, will be the preacher at the Sunday morning service, according to announcement made today by the pastor, the Rev. L. C. Shearer.

Officers of New Guard Unit Named

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16.—First steps toward the formation of 176th Infantry Anti-Tank Co., Virginia National Guard, will be taken here April 19 at a meeting to be held in the armory at 7:45 p. m. Col. Edwin Cox, commanding officers of the 176th Combat Team, and other officers will attend.

Capt. Bascom S. Pribble, company commander, today announced the appointment of two officers of the unit, Lieuts. Frank Billingsley of Fredericksburg and Odell C. McGhee of Spotsylvania County.

Floods in Eight States Drive 20,000 Victims From Homes

Chicago, April 16 (U.P.).—Floods covered sections of eight states today and left about 22,000 persons homeless.

The most damaging were in the Ohio River valley. But swollen rivers and streams in Minnesota, North Dakota, Indiana and Florida increased the overall destruction and drove hundreds of persons from their homes.

The flood crest in the Ohio River approached Cincinnati tonight as a thousand soldiers and volunteers across the river in Kentucky battled wild, muddy flood waters.

The twin cities of Cincinnati, with its riverfront already under water, and Newport, Ky., braced for the expected crest of 65 feet, 13 feet over flood level. About 10,000 families are expected to be homeless when the river reaches that point tomorrow.

Four water-front blocks in greater Cincinnati were already flooded but there was little danger to the city proper because the banks of the Ohio rise rapidly.

In the flooded adea were warehouses, commission merchants' building, railroad sidings and a few factories.

Across the river at Newport, soldiers and volunteers piled up sandbags in front of a rising six-foot wall of swirling water. If the barriers fail to hold, 35 blocks of Newport will be inundated and about 1000 families driven from their homes.

United States Army engineers ordered 300 additional troops from Fort Knox, Ky., to help battle the flood at the Kentucky city. They were flown in aboard six transport planes. Col. B. B. Talley, Louisville district engineer, urged industrialists to free all employes for levee work.

The Red River, which runs between Minnesota and North Dakota, was rising slowly. It hit 41.6 feet at Grand Forks, N. Dak., where 50 city blocks were wholly or partly inundated and 150 families were homeless.

North of the city the river had flooded the prairies for three miles or more on each side. The tiny village of Oslo, Minn., 20 miles north of Frand Forks, suffered the worst flood in its history.

Loudoun P-TA Council Elects Brown President

Leesburg, Va., April 16.—The Loudoun County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, has elected Howard Brown, of Lincoln, president. He succeeded Mrs. Harry P. Sommers. Other officers elected were: Mrs. Elijah F. Myers, of Leesburg, vice president; Miss Jane Pettit, of Lincoln, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Thomas Campbell, of Waterford, recording secretary, and Mrs. R. L. Booth, Middleburg, treasurer. Marvin B. Simpson, of North Fork, was elected historian.

Scientist Predicts Russian A-Bomb By January, 1953

Copenhagen, Denmark, April 16 (U.P.).—Atomic Engineer Gunnar Knoes said today that Russia will have the atom bomb by January 1, 1953.

Knoes is working with Nils Bohr and other leading atomicists in an attempt to establish international atomic control. He said the "outlook is terrible."

"Russia does not have the bomb today, because until now she has been unable to produce enough heavy water," he said.

"After 1953, the United States cannot be sure they will not be blown up by Russian atomic bombs, and I am sure the United States will not let Pearl Harbor be repeated."

To Meet at Winchester

Winchester, Va., April 16.—Members of the Northern Virginia Medical Society meeting this week in Luray picked Winchester as the site for their next meeting. Dr. C. H. Iden of Berryville, president, will arrange the program.

Exhibition May Continue

sponsibility by merely returning them to their physical location."

William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to Russia, declared:

"Western Germany is a danger zone. Peace is at the mercy of an incident. The danger to the paintings is less in the United States. For the immediate future, the paintings should be kept in the United States and exhibited at properly qualified museums."

Dudley T. Easby, jr., secretary of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, said it was not for the museum to offer an opinion on a question of national policy, but said the Metropolitan would like to exhibit the paintings.

Other witnesses from the Metropolitan included Horace H. F. Jayne, vice director; Murray Pease, technical expert, and Robert Sugden, registrar.

Peyton Boswell, jr., editor of Art Digest, Alonzo Lansford of Telfair Academy, Savannah, Ga., and Perry Rathbone, director of the St. Louis, Mo., City Art Museum, agreed with Easby's request for further exhibit of the pictures.

David E. Finley, director of the National Gallery, said the trustees, including Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, had expressed themselves informally as hoping that if the pictures go on tour responsibility will rest with the Army and not the Gallery.

Citation and Saggy Duel Again Today At Havre de Grace

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16.—All Citation-Saggy arguments should be settled tomorrow. Not since War Admiral was sunk by Seabiscuit at Pimlico, has Maryland been so pepped up about the relative merits of two horses.

The Calumet Express and the Baltimore Bomber will settle their differences in the $25,000 Chesapeake Stakes at a mile and a sixteenth. Citation fans say that he will leave his rival up the stretch and Saggy rooters are just as confident that their entry will hold on to the end.

The Citation-Saggy controversy, lukewarm when the pair were juveniles last year, waxed hotter after last Monday's meeting in the $10,000 Chesapeake Trial.

Calumet's Kentucky Derby favorite, unbeaten except for coasting home second to a stablemate last summer, charged through the stretch but, even with the efficient Eddie Arcaro engineering the drive, he was unable to catch Saggy.

Baltimore money was solidly behind Saggy last Monday. Those who bet Citation almost off the board didn't accept defeat gracefully and Arcaro was loudly booed. The Italian-American rider then blamed Carson Kirk, who rode Hefty, for forcing Citation wide. This added fuel to the fire.

Changes have been made for tomorrow's battle. From six furlongs, the distance is upped to a mile and a sixteenth: Saggy gets 3 pounds from Citation instead of 5; the track should be fast instead of muddy and only five are entered instead of eight. Among the absentees will be Hefty, the storm center following the Trial.

Upwards of 20,000 are expected, the race giving "The Graw" a drawing card that outshines nearby Garden State.

Three other Derby candidates go postward and you can name your own odds. They are: Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Dr. Almac, S. W. Labrot, Jr.'s Bovard and Alan T. Clarke's Ritz Maisel.

Four entries were on the track this morning. Saggy galloped around the strip without being asked for speed. Citation was breezed a half mile in :50, Dr. Almac did the same distance in :53 3/5 and Bovard stepped three eighths in :38 secands.

Winner's Share $20,250

Saggy, seeking his third straight triumph, won the Chesapeake Trial and the E. R. Bradley Memorial at Tropical Park in his two previous efforts. He was in the money in three earlier starts, including a third in the Bahamas at Hialeah and in the Flamingo at the same track, a race in which Citation was the winner. Saggy's two-year record shows 8 victories in 12 starts and he never has been out of the money. His earnings amount to $61,090.

Citation won the Seminole, Everglades and Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah prior to bowing to Saggy in the trial. A year ago, Citation won eight of nine starts, being beaten only by his stablemate, Bewitch. His triumphs include the Belmont and Pimlico Futurities. He had earned $220,155 to date.

If all five go to the post in the Chesapeake, the winner's share of the $25,000 added money will be $20,250.

Baltimoreans Win Pro-Am

Baltimore, April 16 (AP).—Frank Invernizzi, Baltimore driving-range professional and Jess Dowling, a local amateur, teamed for a six under par 64 today to win the first Middle Atlantic PGA Pro-Am golf tourney of the season today at Hillendale.

Invernizzi carded a 74, while his partner had a 75, good enough to give Dowling low net honors in the amateur sweepstakes when his seven-stroke handicap was taken into consideration.

Johnny Bass, professional of the Clifton Park Public Links here, was the only golfer to break par. He carded a 34-35—69.

Walter Romans, Baltimore Country Club, and D. A. Davis, 65; E. R. Jones, 69.

Harry Grieamer, Bethesda, and Bob Morris, 68; George Ashton, 73.

Walter Bogley, Prince Georges pro, and Sid Schwinn, 69; Garland Bowers, 69; Earl Brengle, 70.

Sarazen Has 63 to Lead Specialists

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Virginia Beach, Va., April 16.—Chunky, greying Gene Sarazen of Germantown, N. Y., who'll be the "non-playing" captain of the teams in tomorrow's unusual "specialists" golf match, showed the youngsters how to do it today when he fired a 63 in the opening round of medal play competition.

Sarazen equalled the competitive course record for the short, soggy Cavalier Club layout and slashed six strokes off par figures. The record originally was set by Chandler Harper of nearby Portsmouth, Va., one of the select 15 chosen for today's event.

Even this great round gave Sarazen only a two-stroke margin over his nearest rival, Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, and nearly half the hand-picked shotmakers were under par for the first 18 holes.

Worsham Has 68

Jim Ferrier, National PGA champion from San Francisco, and Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Ark., had 66s. Jimmy Demaret, Oaji, Cal., came in with a 67 and open champion Lew Worsham of Washington and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., shot 68's, one under par for rthe 6065-yard course.

The only golfers who really had trouble were Chick Harbert, of Detroit, and the veteran Ed Dudley of Augusta, Ga.. P.G.A. president. Both scored 76's.

Harbert got into some woods on the sixth hole and took a nine when his ball lodged in an unplayable lie.

The final 36 holes of the 54-hole tournament will be played Sunday after a one-day interruption for the team struggle.

In this group of specialists, captained by Sarazen, and one led by Walter Hagen, will compete with each golfer playing only the shots he executes the best. After the long hitters tee off, the captains will select a man for the next stroke—a long or short iron specialist, a trouble man, etc.

As Sarazen left the green at the conclusion of the round, with the other contestants pushing through the crowd to congratulate him, Gene grinned and commented: "I waited 30 years to get that."

G. W. Tennis Team Routs Duke, 9-0

George Washington University's tennis forces were routed by Duke, 9-0, yesterday at Kenwood Country Club. The Duke netmen won every set played during the match. It was G. W.'s opening tennis match of the season.

Ted's 3-Run Homer Tops 19-6 Rout Of Braves

Boston, April 16 (AP).—Ted Williams' first 1948 Boston homer, a terrific 400-foot drive with two on base, sent the Boston Red Sox rolling along to a 19-6 victory over the Braves in the third game of their city series today before a 12,630 crowd at the National League Park.

The Sockers blasted four Braves' pitchers for 24 hits that accounted for 35 bases and they more than clinched their second intra-city triumph with a six-run rally in the second inning, when Williams belted over the center field wall against Lefty Clyde Shoun with Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky aboard.

In the sixth inning, Earl Torgeson, the Braves' first sacker, and Pinchhitter Billy Hitchcock were ejected for fighting. Hitchcock grabbed Torgy around the legs after a throw got away from him and they started swapping punches. Most of the players on both squads rushed out to pry them apart.

Yanks End Bums' String

New York, April 16 (AP).—Picking up where they left off in the World Series, the New York Yankees defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8-6, today before 14,025 fans at Yankee Stadium.

The win snapped Brooklyn's string of 25 straight exhibition wins, all over minor league opposition.

Home runs by Tommy Henrich and Charlie Keller broke a 5-5 tie and put the Yankees ahead to stay.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 16 (AP).—Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., and Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., today reached finals of the North and South Women's golf tournament.

Miss Suggs trimmed Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio, 6 and 5. Miss Lenczyk defeated Medalist Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, 3 and 2.

They will meet for the title in an 18-hole match tomorrow over the No. 2 course. Women's par for the 6142-yard layout is 74.

Eastern Blanks Coolidge, 5-0; Wilson Tops Anacostia, 6-2

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Calvin Coolidge's Colts suffered their first baseball defeat since 1946 yesterday, 5-0, when Eastern's Frank Utley set them down with one hit, in their Interhigh League opener at Eastern Stadium.

Eighteen-year-old Utley, 6-foot senior, had a no-hitter until two were out in the seventh. Then Coolidge's Dick Kidwell beat out a dribbler to deep short. Utley walked five and struck out four, allowing only one Coolidge runner to reach third. His best pitch was a curve.

Eastern doomed Coolidge's 23-game winning streak with a four-run outburst in the first inning. A hit batsman, a walk, two errors and singles by Spike Bauroth and Sal DeGiorgi accounted for the runs. A well-tgged home run to right center by Billy Kallas in the second inning, wound up the scoring.

Garcia Once Again Stars in Relief With 3 Hitless Innings

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Danville, Va., April 16.—The Nats took a final whack at their northern trek companions, the Phillies, today before the two clubs parted company. Jake Early hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning to jostle the Phillies out of their 6-3 lead and any complacence they were beginning to feel.

The final score was 9 to 6 in favor of the Washingtonians, but the Nats did not impress the 3500 natives of the mangy old Danville park until 38-year-old Ed Heusser poked his face on the pitching mound for the Phils in the seventh. They swatted him for three runs in the seventh and three more in the eighth.

Early's co-hero for the Nats was little Ramon Garcia, the non-English speaking little Cuban pitcher who is demonstrating that he is very conversant with the art of getting big league hitters out despite his lack of previous experience in organized baseball.

Senor Garcia arrived on the scene in the seventh inning and didn't give up a run to the Phillies, who previously had socked Early Wynn and Sid Hudson for 13 hits. Garcia and his well-controlled curve ball have now gone to the post three times against major league clubs, and in 10 innings he hasn't yielded a run, and only five hits.

Wynn had another rough afternoon and the Phillies rapped him for nine hits and six runs in the first three innings, including home run swats over the right field wall by Del Ennis and Dick Sisler. Sid Hudson, pitching the next three innings, gave up five of the Phils' 16 hits, but held 'em scoreless.

Dutch Leonard, pitching the first three innings for the Phils, gave up two runs, one of them on a passed ball. The other, however, was a very honest tally. It was Sherry Robertson's fiery homer over the 338-foot sign in right center.

But Oscar Judd held the Nats runless through the fourth and fifth. He forced a run home in the sixth to cut the Phils' lead to 6-3.

Two Runs for the Road

Culberson and McBride reached Heusser for singles in the seventh and with two out Early walloped the game tying homer far over the wall in right center. In the eighth after Al Kozar made his third hit of the game, the Phils walked Vernon purposely, and Culberson singled home the winning run. A bit later Eddie Yost singled to right for two superfluous runs.

Young Garcia was impressive particularly in the eighth inning after two hits, one of them a fuzzy single, and a walk filled the bases with two out. Del Ennis, scourge of the Washington pitching for the past week, was the next hitter and Garcia had a two-ball-no-strike count on him and apparently was in deep trouble. He struck Ennis out on the next three pitches.

AT 8:45 A. M. A TRAIN will deposit the Nats in Washington tomorrow after 47 days in the South . . . Griffith Stadium fans can view 'em at 3 p. m. when they play the Baltimore Orioles . . . Milo Candini, who has been crowding into a starting pitching job, will face the Baltimore club . . . The two clubs will play in Baltimore Sunday . . . The Washington pitchers will be grateful for the sight of Griffith Stadium after working in the pitch-and-putt parks in Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia where the outfielders' shoulder blades brush against the fences . . . Manager Joe Kuhel will have a morning conference with Clark Griffith tomorrow to learn the latest developments on the Nats' deal for an outfielder and an infielder . . . Rookie Ramon Garcia moved himself up several notches in the ratings of the Nats' pitchers today and probably won himself a job as relief man, at least.

Reynolds Faces Nats in Opener

New York, April 16 (AP).—Allie Reynolds will be the Yankee starting pitcher Monday when New York opens the American League season at Washington.

Manager Bucky Harris made the announcement today. He also elected Ed Lopat, former Chicago White Sox southpaw, as the second-game pitcher for Tuesday.

'Brass' Talk Of Land, Air Attacks

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

WHEN a retired Army officer calls on a Naval Reserve officer what do they talk about?

The infantry? Air power vs. sea power? No, don't be foolish.

Why football, generally, and the merits of the T-formation and the single-wing specifically, cifically.

There may be exceptions to this, but not when Brig. Gen. Robert R. Neyland, USA, (ret.), and Lieut. Comdr. James M. Tatum, USNR, see each other.

Neyland, a West Pointer, is head football coach of Tennessee U. and Tatum, as if you didn't know, is comamnding officer of Maryland's football forces.. Their little chit-chat was held at College Park yesterday while the Terps were conducting spring practice.

There wasn't a word about the military uttered by either party. Instead, they talked about trap plays, quick kicks, unbalanced lines and men in motion, as both suddenly became whenever the Old Liners pulled one of their sleight-of-hand tricks during the unscheduled scrimmage.

NEYLAND and Tatum had a lot in common, too. Both played North Carolina last year and got beat. Both played Vanderbilt last year and won.

Tatum thought his Terps hit their peak in the Vanderbilt game and Neyland said he had heard about that. Tatum then said he had been told that Tennessee wasn't exactly a slouch when it dumped Vanderbilt and Neyland voted for that, too.

Oh, it was quite chummy-chummy. Neyland said he was enjoying a busman's holiday, that he had concluded his spring practice last week and was just visiting.

Tatum sent his charges through a prescrimmage—a real one is set today—just for Neyland's edification. Neyland enjoyed it so much that he asked Tatum to show him pictures of last year's Terp games and Tatum agreed.

Jus thought you'd like to know what the brass talked about on their "off-duty" hours.

Coronet Star Wins at 'Graw

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16. Coronet Star, a 5-year-old mare who couldn't get out of her own way last time out, was the winner of the Speustia Purse, featuring the Friday program.

Carrying J. Ferrara's colors and under the handling of Apprentice Ray Drury, the daughter of Marching Sir won by a length and a half. Cedar Farm's Fiery Dawn was second another length and a half in advance of F. A. Piarulli's Frapia in the field of 10.

A crowd of 7000 saw the program under clear skies and over a heavy, holding track. Coronet Star was clocked in 1:17 for the six furlongs and returned a $25.60 mutuel.

Jockey Paul Keiper was suspended for five days as an aftermath of the disqualification of Jubilee Gem in the eighth race yesterday. Keiper was alleged to have cut over sharply soon after the start of the race.

Rain Washes Out 4 Terp Runs in 6th

Ithaca, N. Y., April 16.—Bob Keene pitched three-hit ball to enable the University of Maryland to defeat Cornell today, 2-0, in a game that was held to five innings because of rain and darkness.

The game was called with one man on in the sixth inning after the Terrapins had teed off on Lefthander Ken Battles for four runs, the score, however, reverted to the fifth inning.

Maryland scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings.

Singles by Jim Moeller and Tony Emsweller and a hit batsman, Joe Andrus, accounted for the run in the fourth.

The other tally was scored when Al Tuminski singled to left, scoring John Condon who had walked and reached second on a sacrifice.

It was Maryland's second win against four losses and two ties. Cornell has lost two and won one.

Hoyas 4-Run 4th Beats W&L, 4 to 3

Lexington, Va., April 16 (AP).—Georgetown's baseball club pushed across four runs in the fourth inning and then weathered Washington and Lee's ninth inning rally to defeat the Generals, 4 to 3, here today.

The Hoyas rapped Mike Boyk for four singles and drew a walk to gain up their four runs in the fourth.

After picking up a tally in the sixth frame, the Generals saw their uprising in the ninth pailed when Brian Bell grounded out to end the inning. Charlie Agnor had opened the inning with a homer into left-centerfield that scored Freddie Vinson after two were out.

Army Fliers Unhurt In Andrews Crackup

Another Found Dead In Blue Ridge Foothills Crash

Three Army fliers escaped unhurt yesterday when the landing gear of their twin-engine plane collapsed in a 95-mile-an-hour landing at Andrews Field.

Fifty miles northwest of Washington in the Blue Ridge foothills, the wreckage of a Pine Grove, Pa., plane was found near Paris, Va., its only occupant dead.

In the Andrews Field accident, the Beechcraft C-45 skidded 350 feet along the concrete runway on its belly.

It had been on a local flight from Bolling Field, piloted by Lieut. Cecil O. Brown, 26, of 225 Orange st. se. The copilot was Lieut. Thomas P. Sheedy, 26, of 1660 Lanier pl. nw., and the crew chief, Sergt. Melvin B. Fleming of the Air Transport Command at Gravelly Point.

The Pine Grove pilot was identified as John Maurer, about 30.

Chiang Troops Capture Red Arsenal and Base

Peiping (Friday), April 16 (AP).—The government announced today that Nationalist troops had captured Hokien, Communist arsenal and base in the heart of Hopeh Province about 100 miles south of Peiping.

Headquarters hailed it as a "big victory" and said the Communists fled in disorder after suffering heavy losses.

Senate Blast At CAB Hints Of 'Corruption'

The Civil Aeronautics Board was criticized yesterday by two Republican Senators for possible "neglect or even corruption" in its allocation of airline routes.

A subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee had Joseph J. O'Connell, new CAB chairman, on the stand in connection with a CAB grant of a South American route to Braniff Airlines, Pan-American and Pan-American Grace, already flying approximately the same route, asked the committee to investigate the situation and suggested airmail pay be stopped during hearings.

They told the committee that if the new line goes into operation May 20 as scheduled it will cost the Government an additional 7 million to 10 million dollars a year in increased airmail costs.

Chairman Cordon (R., Oreg.) of the subcommittee asked O'Connell if the Braniff award could be reviewed by CAB immediately. O'Connell said it wouldn't be possible, that it would be unfair to Braniff to take hasty action since Braniff had invested considerable money to set up the route.

Pressed by committee members, O'Connell protested that Congress had no right to "retry" CAB rulings. Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) took exception to that view.

City Approves Cafe Fund for 1950 Budget

The Commissioners yesterday gave tentative approval of the expenditure of $120,000 in fiscal 1950 for a modern lunchroom under the plaza alongside the Municipal Center.

Engineer Commissiontr Gordon R. Young said it would cost about $21,750 to correct defects and bring the present lunchroom, which occupies space designed for a pistol range, up to standards required by the Health Department.

Young said it seemed undesirable to spend that much "in a place which was not intended for a cafeteria and would never be really satisfactory."

He proposed, instead, that cafeteria facilities be set up in a lasge underground chamber built to serve both the present East Municipal Center building and the proposed West building. This is still a skeleton ihamber "with no finish, utilities or equipment," ne said.

For $120,000, enoogh of the spaie could be finished to serve the East Minicipal Center building, he said.

House Unit Clears D. C. Rent Control, DST Bills

Full Committee To Get Measures Passed by Senate At Meeting Monday

District rent control extension and daylight saving time bills have been approved by the House District Judiciary Subcommittee, Chairman Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) announced yesterday.

Both will be presented to the House District committee at an executive meeting at 9:30 a. m. Monday. Both bills have passd the Senate.

In the rent bill, O'Hara announced that two perfecting amendments had been made, neither of them changing basic purposes of the Senate-approved measure.

While the daylight saving time bill cleared the O'Hara subcommittee over the chairman's opposition, a dispute is expected in the full committee over whether the law should be good for one year only, or for every year as the Senate decided.

Change in Rent Controls

Last year's daylight saving time law for Washington was limited to that year. The Senate measure would let the Commissioners put daylight saving time into effect each from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.

The rent control bill would carry the District law through March 31, 1949, with some modifications. On April 30, controls would be taken off transient hotel accommodations.

Where the Senate bill said that de-controls should be effective for these hotel accommodations "predominantly" used for transients, O'Hara's group made the de-control apply to accommodations used "exclusively" for transients. The purpose of both wordings is to protect permanent residents in hotels.

Aim at Increased Housing

O'Hara said the second change was aimed at tightening the language of the bill for the removal of controls from new housing that reaches the market after March 31 as the result of reconversion. The House group added language to make clear that the decontrol feature would apply only to reconverted buildings not previously used for housing accommodations. The purpose is to take the controls off converted buildings that actually increase the supply of housing there.

Also removed from controls effective April 30 would be non-housekeeping rooms in private homes with not more than two paying tenants, and newly constructed housing which is completed after March 31.

The present rent law here expires April 30.

Woman, 70, Sent to Prison For Larceny

A 70-year-old woman was sentenced in District Court yesterday to 6 to 18 months in prison on a grand larceny charge for selling her furniture and renting her apartment to eight different persons.

She is Mre. Bertha Jackson, 117 11th st. se. She was charged with accepting more than $2300 from prospective tenants at the above address. Justice Richmond B. Keech imposed the sentence.

Alger Dyson, 25, of 1254 Half st. se., was given 15 years to life imprisonment for second degree murder in the fatal stabbing last February of Joseph A. Harley, 26, of the same address.

Obed Smith, 48, of 402 M st. nw., convicted of manslaughter, was given 5 to 15 years for fatally shooting his wife Ida, 45, in January.

Also sentenced for manslaughter was Charles F. Ashton, 33, of no fixed address, who received 4 to 12 years for the fatal scissors stabbing in February of Thomas Atkins, 70, of 1336 5th st. nw.

Two numbers writers were given $75 fines and probation terms of one year by Justice Alexander Holtzoff. They were Olive B. Wilson, 31, of 1732 Corcoran st. nw., and Grace L. Dawson, 23, of the same address.

'Psychopath' Gets Auto Theft Term

Baltimore, April 16 (AP).—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut sent a young automobile stealer to prison for three years today and hoped it would be the turning point in a career seemed destined for the hangman's noose or electric chair.

The offender was 19-year-old James Lonald Beck, son of a retired Army sergeant living near Fort Meade, Md. Since he was 14, Beck has been arrested at least 15 times for car theft.

Dr. Ralph P. Truitt testified he was a "psychopaththic personality likely to commit more serious crimes."

Judge Chesnut pointed to this parallel:

About four years ago, a teenager named Roy Arnold Wood stood in the same court on an automobile stealing charge. Last week, in a State court across the street, Wood was sentenced to hang for slaying a Baltimore policeman on Friday, February 13.

'Firetrap' Tag Result of Test Truman Asked

Chandelier Shimmy At White House Gave President Concern

President Truman himself brought about the latest revelation this week that behind the dignified facade of the White House there lies a "firetrap," it was learned yesterday.

Several months ago, the President became concerned with the shimmying of his study floor when a throng gathered in the second-floor oval room.

Asked for Examination

Mr. Truman, wondering about the security of the floor, called in W. E. Reynolds, Commissioner of Public Buildings, and suggested a look-see into the vibrations, and an over-all examination of the White House to boot.

The investigation was carried out by Reynolds, R. E. Dougherty, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and Douglas W. Orr, president of the American Institute of Architects.

The trio of experts reported back to the President that the White House was, in effect, a firetrap, and that remedial measures should be taken as quickly as possible. Whereupon, Commissioner Reynolds was dispatched to Congress to explain the situation and ask for emergency funds.

Thus it was on Wednesday that Commissioner Reynolds, appearing before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, asked for a deficiency fund of $50,000 for plans and specifications for fireproofing and strengthening the building.

Limit of 15 Suggested

As for the shimmying floor of the President's study, it was suggested to Mr. Truman that the number of persons in the room be limited to 15 at any one time.

How much will have to be done to the White House—the oldest public building in the District—will be determined only after a more detailed examination.

The White House was completed in 1800, burned by the British in 1814, and reconstructed in practically its original form.

Then in 1902, under Theodore Roosevelt, the structure was renovated, and at that time the architects warned that the building was a fire hazard. The same warning was issued in 1927, when other alterations were made.

Some preventive steps were taken, but in 1940, the Secret Service was up before Congress asking for 20 extra White House policemen to provide an adequate fire watch.

There have been several fires at the White House since the British burned it down, biggest of which occurred Christmas night of 1929 in the old executive oces.

Commented Commissoiner Reynolds yesterday, "By modern standards, the White House would not pass the standards of safety of any city in the country."

2 Killed, 1 Hurt In Anne Arundel Head-On Crash

Glen Burnie, Md., April 16 (AP).—Two men were killed outright today and a third was hurt when their car crashed head-on with a dump truck on Mountain rd., near Lipins Corner, southeast of here in Anne Arundel County.

Oregon R. Neighoff, 52-year-old building contractor, living at Shipley Heights, was trapped in his car and pronounced dead when finally extricated after 30 minutes.

Charles Doetzer, 32, of Linthicum Heights, who was riding with Neighoff, was pronounced dead at South Baltimore General Hospital.

Police arrested William Monroe, employe of the George C. Schmidt Contracting Co. at Lake Shore and driver of the truck. He was released in $2500 bail for a hearing April 30 on manslaughter and reckless driving charges.

Neighoff is survived by his wife and five children. He is credited with developing the Homewood section of Linthicum, where he had built 12 houses. He was supervising the building of a new home in Gibson Island.

Citizenship Tour Begun by 49 Schoolgirls

Forty-nine high school girls from 48 States and the District gathered in Washington yesterday for the annual Good Citizenship Pilgrimage sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Selected from the Nation's high school seniors for their dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism, the girls will visit the Capital shrines and sights on a busy schedule and return home Tuesday.

The District held a party in honor of the girls last night; tonight at 7 they'll have a banquet at the Willard Hotel, where they're staying, with Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, DAR president, as principal speaker. They'll be received at the White House by Mrs. Truman at 2 p. m. Monday and be presented to the opening session of the fifty-seventh DAR Continental Congress Monday evening.

The citizenship pilgrimage has been held for the past 10 years. All high school senior girls are eligible for the State-wide contests, whether or not they are descended from Revolutionary patriots, DAR officials said.

Among the girls participating in the pilgrimage are Nancy Lee Cooper of 6404 Luzon ave.; Mary Rule, Annapolis, Md., and Edmonia Johnson, Bedford, Va.

The pilgrimage is a preliminary event to the fifty-seventh DAR Congress, which begins Monday and continues through Thursday. National defense will be theme of the Congress.

Wallace Entered In Maryland's General Election

Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP).—Presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace today was entered in the Maryland general election.

Petitions to place Wallace and his running mate, Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) on the State ballot for President were filed by the Progressive Party of Maryland.

"Wallace will poll more than 80,000 votes in Maryland—at a minimum," said State Director Harold Buchman in filing a one-foot-thick stack of petitions with the secretary of state.

Buchman said there were 8603 signatures, four times the legal requirement for an independent candidate.

The Progressive Party also filed nominating petitions for three congressional candidates.

Dr. John E. T. Camper, party co-chairman, a Negro, was entered in the Fourth District (Baltimore.)

Philip C. Kulinski was entered in the Third (Baltimore) District and Michael J. Clifford in the Second (Baltimore) and suburbs.

20 Montgomery Cabbies Face Taxi Violations

Warrants charging 20 Montgomery County cab drivers with violating the taxicab ordinance have been sworn out since April 1, police said yesterday.

At the same time, a second charge against Robert H. Swisher, 25, a Takoma Park, Md., hacker, of failing to obtain a required permit was transferred yesterday from Silver Spring Police Court to County Circuit Court.

Swisher, who is contesting constitutionality of the ordinance in Circuit Court, was arrested Wednesday and released immediately on his personal bond.

In transferring the Swisher case to his court, Judge Stedman Prescott said he acted because the hacker's civil suit against the ordinance is still pending.

Gloucester Ferry Fire Damage Put at $10,000

Gloucester, Va., April 16 (AP).—Fire in a building on the docks of the Gloucester-Yorktown Ferry Corporation this afternoon caused an estimated $5000 to $10,000 damage, a ferry company spokesman said.

The blaze was first discovered in mid-afternoon in the paint and maintenance shop on the second floor of the building housing the main ferry offices.

Ferry company workers using a portable fire fighting unit had the blaze within control in a short time.

Compromise Clears Way for Arizona Ave.

D. C. Will Build Road, U. S. Control Traffic And Provide Police

A compromise agreement between District and Federal Government officials over construction and control of the controversial Arizona ave. Parkway was announced yesterday by the Commissioners.

Under the plan, the District will construct and control the pavement for passenger vehicles only. National Park Service will control traffic, policing by the United States Park Police, operation and maintenance of the lighting system, and issuance of permits.

Plans will be prepared jointly, with NPS responsible for "architectural design" and the District for designs affecting "structural integrity" of the highway and bridges.

The agreement calls for a "swap" of areas controlled by each between Canal rd. and Van Ness st. nw., so that the parkway will have a comparatively straight right-of-way.

Physician Blames 'Men at the Top' For Shortage

Cumberland, Md., April 16 (AP).—Dr. Richard J. Williams of Cumberland today blamed "men at the top" for the doctor shortage, and sharply criticized views expressed last Wednesday by Dr. Charles S. Maxson, president of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland.

Dr. Williams told Dr. Maxson in a letter today that the shortage of general practitioners "is in part your fault."

Dr. Maxson had said in Baltimore that a public which finds it difficult to obtain physicians may lean toward socialized medicine, which most doctors oppose. He pointed out that doctors of today "take their weekends and their evenings. Some refuse to make any night visits . . ."

Dr. Williams' replied today that "the few doctors of us here in Cumberland who do general medicine are working night and day. We often refuse calls because we are just too exhausted to go."

He said the shortage of general practitioners had come about because "organized medicine encourages young men to spend years specializing . . ."

Civic Federation Indorses Fairfax Schools Proposal

A proposed $3,929,250 bond issue for construction of new county school facilities has been indorsed by the Fairfax County Civic Federation.

The group in a resolution adopted at a meeting in the Annandale School Thursday night, stressed the "need and urgency of additional school facilities."

The Federation also:

1. Agreed to urge the Fairfax Board of Supervisors to enact an ordinance requiring real estate developers to consult with county school and planning officials regarding school sites before building permits are issued.

2. Moved that a planning consultant be hired to make a "comprehensive survey" of all phases of Fairfax County schools, with an allocation of not more than $15,000 from the proposed bond issue for the new position.

Park Service Acquires Old Maryland House

Towson, Md., April 16 (AP).—One of Maryland's oldest houses was turned over to the National Park Service today and officials announced it would be opened in about a year as a national historic site.

John Ridgely, seventh generation of his family to occupy 165-year-old Hampton House, turned the keys over to Thomas J. Allen, regional director of the Park Service from Richmond.

John H. Scarff, secretary of the Society for the Preservation of Maryland Antiquities, said it was hoped to have the mansion restored and open to the public by May, 1949.

Virginia Farm Wages Continue to Advance

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—Wages of workers on Virgilan farms last month continued an upward trend that began in 1940, the Virginia Cooperative Corp Reporting Service said today.

Wages per month, with board, were 69 as of April 1 compared with $62.25 a year ago. Wages per month, without board, were $94 last month compared with $83.50 a year ago.

Prosecution Hits Pitfall In Labor Case

Judge Warns That Only One Conspiracy To Defraud Can Exist In Moreschi Trial

Prosecution in the District's labor racketeering trial yesterday ran into a legal pitfall which may force it to reconsider its whole approach to the 4-year-old case.

The Government may abandon one of the major counts in the conspiracy indictment in order to prevent jeopardizing all of its charges.

Defense counsel charged, and the court agreed, that the Government's indictment, while alleging a single conspiracy, spears to involve more than one conspiracy. This could legally prevent conviction of the defendants on a single conspiracy charge.

Count May Be Dropped

The count which may be dropped involves alleged conspiracy by officials of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union to defraud the Government of liquor taxes.

In 1943, Federal agents raided the El Patio night club, 711 13th st., and local union headquarters, 523 New Jersey ave. nw., and reportedly found $19,000 in fine liquor, on which certain taxes were not paid.

Claim Purchase Unknown

The Government maintains this liquor was purchased unknown to union members and for benefit of union officers, one of whom, the missing Larry Kelly, allegedly bought a half-interest in the El Patio with union money.

The Government then went on to uncover what it alleges were numerous other instances of union fund looting to purchase restaurants, a private home for Kelly, and other benefits for union leaders.

Immediately after Special Prosecutor Leo A. Rover completed the opening statement of the Government's case yesterday, attorneys for the nine union leader defendants sought a directed verdict of acquittal on grounds that the Government was not alleging one conspiracy as charged, but several conspiracies.

While refusing the motion, District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff said Rover's statement, "leads the court to believe the proof will rather show two conspiracies . . . embezzlement and defrauding the Government." If two conspiracies were proved, where only one was charged, he said, he would be legally required to make a directed verdict of acquittal upon conclusion of the case.

Judge Sees Dilemma

Judge Holtzoff advised Rover, who was recently brought in as prosecutor, to abandon the portion of the case involving tax defrauding, adding, "The Government should consider the dilemma it is in."

Rover said that before the trial resumes Monday he may take such action.

Earlier, Rover declared that union officials, in attempting to "cover up" for $15,000 of the $19,000 allegedly spent for liquor, "doctored" union minutes in a misleading effort to show that Larry Kelly was given $15,000 for liquor "to celebrate burning of a $12,500 mortgage" on union headquarters.

An unsuccessful motion for a mistrial, on grounds that the prosecution was attempting to inject racial prejudice to influence the jury, which includes seven Negro members, was made yesterday by Attorney Joseph B. Keenan.

Keenan represents Joseph V. Moreschi, president of the 400,000-member international union, Achilles Persion, secretary-treasurer of the international, and J. W. Garvey, international organizer.

Prejudice Charge Made

Rover was attempting to inject prejudice, said Keenan, by stressing that $18,000 of construction at Cedar Point, Md.—allegedly financed in large part by embezzled union funds—provided separate restaurant and barrack facilities for whites and Negroes.

The Government charges union officials and others conspired to take $16,000 out of the treasury of union Local 832 at La Plata, Md., for this construction. All the local ever got back, said Rover, was $3000 in property.

Another union local, 801, at Quantico, Va., said Rover, never had a bank account of its own but all its money was handled by Larry Kelly, who disappeared in 1933 and since was reported buried in New Guinea. The Government does not acknowledge, however, that Kelly is dead, although his charges have been separated from the present case.

In addition to the international union officers named, defendants on trial are Faust Moreschi, Joseph Moreschi's son, and Joseph Speed, George Morgan, George W. Plummer, Evans H. Hamilton, all former local union officers, and Isaac Weiner, contractor named in the Cedar Point construction allegations.

Milk Price Conspiracy For 18 Years Charged

One Dairy Forced Into Receivership, Justice Department Suit Contends

Charges that the milk conspiracy which it alleges was under way here for 18 years forced one dairy into receivership and sought to hamstring two others were made yesterday by the Justice Department.

The charges were made in a bill of particulars detailing the broad-scale antitrust indictment returned here March 8 against seven dairies, the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, and the association's secretary treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick.

Through "books, writings and acts of the defendants," stated the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, it "is inferred" that the defendants agreed to the following:

". . . Endeavoring to prevent and eliminate competition of Fairfax Farms Dairy, Embassy Dairy Inc. (the two are now combined as Embassy Dairy), and Holbrook Farms Dairy in the sale of fluid milk and cream . . .

". . . In spreading false rumors and statements regarding the ability of Fairfax Farms Dairy, Embassy Dairy, Inc., and Holbrook Farms Dairy to pay for milk purchased by them . . .

". . . inforcing Holbrook Farms Dairy into receivership (in 1941), into sale of its assets, and in purchasing the assets of said dairy and subsequently in operating the same until the time of sale to defendant Harvey Dairy, Inc. . . ."

While the Government said it did not have knowledge of the time, place or persons involved in all the meetings which brought the alleged conspiracy to fix milk prices and restrain dairy trade, it said two meetings resulting in certain charges were held in January, 1947, and March, 1947, at the association's offices, 1756 K st. nw.

The Government's bil lof particulars, filed "voluntarily" yesterday, was submitted in response to requests by the defendants for more specifics to support the charges.

A hearing on motions for the bill of particulars, and other motions, yesterday was postponed in District Court to April 23. Trial date in the case has been set for May 5, and the Government is anxious for an early trial.

In addition to the producers' association and Derrick, other defendants are Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, Thompson's Dairy, Richfield Dairy, Wakefield Dairy, Safeway Stores, Alexandria Dairy and Harvey Dairy.

Yesterday, John Hillyard, representing Wakefield Dairy, filed a motion charging that the entire indictment contituted "duplicity."

Hillyard's charge was based on a case against the Borden Co., in Chicago, which was dismissed on grounds that it alleged several conspiracy charges, while only claiming to charge one conspiracy. The same situation, Hillyard held, applies to the local indictment.

In another document filed yesterday, Alexandria Dairy which seeks a separate trial in Virginia on several grounds, cited news stories in the Times-Herald, the Evening Star and the Daily News, and editorials in The Washington Post and the Star, which "reflects unfavorably on all defendants."

Association Warns Of Drop in Morale, Decreased Efficiency

Segregation of white and Negro firemen should be maintained here, the District Firemen's Association urged yesterday in a resolution to the Commissioners.

"Integration" of Negroes into white fire companies would cause "lowered morale and decreased efficiency" and the "harmony of action so necessary to efficient fire service would be seriously jeopardized," the resolution said.

Capt. Curtis E. McGhee, chairman of the segregation committee for the association, which is Local No. 36 of the International Association of Fire Fighters (AFL), delivered the resolution.

Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, president of the union, apparently surprised that the Commissioners made public the resolution, said only 110 of the association's approximately 600 members had voted on it.

To Let More Members Vote

He said he would call special meetings at 8:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday to give as many members as possible in both fire shifts a chance to voice their opinions.

The 600-man organization "shouldn't be committed publicly" on such an "important issue" when less than 20 per cent of its membership has voted on it, Conroy said.

The document sent to the Commissioners, he said, was a combination of two resolutions voted on by the same group of men. The first, which urged that no Negro be made permanent captain until he reached the top of the Civil Service register, was passed 80 to 31.

The second, asking that segregation be maintained, passed by a vote of 94 to 16, he said.

Negro Units Overstaffed

(Lieut. Alvin E. Davis, association treasurer, said "two or three" Negro firemen are members of the organization but he didn't "believe they voted" on the resolution.)

There now are 52 Negroes among 910 uniformed firemen, Capt. William Ronan, acting Fire Department executive officer, said. All of the Negroes serve in two engine companies—No. 4 at 931 R st. nw., and No. 27 at Minnesota ave. and Huntt pl. ne.—although department officials say the normal complement for such units is 16 men.

"Civil service appointments have increased the number of colored men in these companies to a point where it now becomes necessary to either allot another fire house to the use of the colored personnel or to practice integration. . . ," the resolution said.

Believe Murphy for Integration

"It is believed that the chief engineer of the Fire Department will propose and/or indorse integration," it said. It "implored" the chief, the Commissioners, Congress and "the taxpayers" to "continue the policy of segregation."

Fire Chief Clement Murphy declined to comment.

Commissioner John Russell Young also was silent on the issue, but said Chief Murphy had never spoken to him about it.

The resolution stated that colored captains, lieutenants and sergeants "were appointed as such by courtesy of their color alone, never having placed high enough on a Civil Service promotional register to have been legally appointed to their present position of rank.

Fear Injustice to Whites

"Under a policy of integration all colored officers then would command white personnel although many of the white subordinates placed higher than their colored superiors on Civil Service promotional registers," it charged.

Capt. William Ronan, acting executive officer of the Fire Department, said "it is a fact" that all Negro officers were promoted by special authority of the Civil Service Commission and "did not attain top grade."

AAUW Branch Seeks Writ in Race Bias Row

University Women Would Force Parent Group to Halt Action

The Washington branch of the American Association of University Women yesterday took to court its fight to retain membership in the national organization and the right to exclude Negroes.

The local chapter filed suit for an injunction against the parent organization and its national officers. The action was taken on the eve of a local chapter referendum on the color question.

John A. Croghan, attorney who filed the action in District Court, said it was taken on the assumption that the mail vote would indorse the Washington branch's stand. Ballots were being prepared for mailing to members this weekend.

Yesterday's court action was the latest development in an 18-month controversy over refusal of the branch to admit Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, Negro college graduate, to its membership. Mrs. Terrell, widow of the former Municipal Court Judge here, is a member of the national association.

The national board last week notified the Washington branch it must change its membership rules and admit all accredited college graduates regardless of their race. Deadline for the rules' change was set for May 6 if the branch wished to continue its affiliation with the national organization.

Yesterday's court motion was for granting an injunction to remain in effect until a court defined the authority of the national organization over its branches.

County Policemen To Seek Support For Pay Boosts

A drive for public support of police department wage increases will be lasunched next week by the Montgomery County Police Association, Det. Corpl. Carrol Miller said yesterday.

Miller, president of the police group, said a committee composed of policemen of all ranks would begin a canvass of prominent business men to enlist their support.

Police Chief Charles M. Orme has proposed wage increases totaling $38,000 for the 116-man force in his 1948-49 budget. Police privates now start at $2600; this figure would be increaased to $2800 under the Orme budget.

Marriage Rules Eased By Catholic Churches

p-oteraedlriael- eta shr eta shr ete

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—Performance of the marriages of Roman Catholics to non-Catholics in Roman Catholic churches of the Richmond diocese will be permissible under an order announced today.

Bishop Peter L. Ireton in an announcement to pastors said such marriages cannot be performed during mass or on Sundays or after 5 p. m.

Heretofore the marriage of a Roman Catholic to a non-Catholic could not be solemnized in a Roman Catholic house of worship.

The announcement, issued by the Rev. Robert O. Hickman, chancellor of the diocese, said that in the future "no permission will be given for the performance of any mixed marriage in any place other than the church or rectory."

Fredericksburg Senior Gets $551.48 for Calf

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16 (AP).—Charles B. Linton, 15-year-old high schol senior here, pocketed $551.48 yesterday after his 855-pound Aberdeen Angus calf won the Fredericksburg baby beef show and brought 64½ cents a pound on the auction block.

The reserve championship went to William Brown of Supply, Essex County, who sold his 770-pound Angus calf at 56 cents a pound.

Linton, a resident of Stafford County, plans to enter Virginia Tech next session to study animal husbandry.

VHA Elects Earngey

Roanoke, Va., April 16 (AP).—W. P. Earngey, jr., superintendent of the Norfolk General Hospital, has been elected president of the Virginia Hospital Association for the coming year.

Earngey and other officers of the association were elected by the executive committee and council chairman of the VHA in a meeting held during the annual Four-State Carolinas-Virginias Hospital Conference now underway here.

Area News in Brief

Station Hip-Pocket Bootlegger 'Guilty'

Union Station's "hip-pocket bootlegger" was found guilty yesterday of practicing his profitable but illegal trade among the thirsty travelers.

A municipal court jury returned the verdict against David Douglas Davenport, 33, of 931 G pl. nw., in his 98th appearance in the court within the past year. He was found guilty on two counts of illegal liquor sales to servicemen and a third for possession of whisky for its illegal sale.

Judge John P. McMahon set May 1 as date of sentencing.

Assistant Corporation Council Clark F. King, prosecutor, labeled Davenport a hip-pocket bootlegger in asking guilty verdicts. Testimony was offered to show Davenport sold a pint of whisky to each of two soldiers, charging them $4 a bottle.

Footprints Trap Man

Telltale footprints in the mud led police to arrest Arthur Nichols, 22, of Wheaton, Md. and charge him with tampering with an auto and destruction of private property.

He was convicted yesterday in Silver Spring Police Court of smashing a car window with a rock and attempting to steal its battery. Police said the footsteps led to Nichols' car, which had no battery. He was fined $40 and costs by Judge William Wheeler.

Clinic in New Quarters

The Mothers Health Clinic of George Washington University Hospital has moved to quarters in the new hospital, off Washington circle nw. It will operate at 9 a.m., Saturdays, instead of its former hours on Thursdays. Appointments may be made by calling ST. 7800, Extension 525.

U. S. Selling German Car

Sealed bids for a seven-passenger, eight-cylinder Horch, 1939 sedan confiscated from the German Embassy during the war, will be received by the Office of Alien Property, Department of Justice, until 11 a. m. May 4, Attorney General Tom Clark announced yesterday.

The bids will be opened then in room 264 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Building, 101 Indiana ave. nw. Further information may be obtained by calling Republic 8200, Branch 1280.

$2500 Damage by Fire

B. & O. Forfeits $400

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. yesterday posted and elected to forfeit $400 with No. 1 Police Precinct on smoke nuisance charges. The four charges were for excessive smoke from company locomotives on its lines between Union Station and the District line.

Damage Suit Shifted

A $140,000 damage suit brought by parents of Martha Jane Repass, 13, of Gaithersburg, Md., injured by a revolving airplane propeller last August, has been transferred from Montgomery Circuit Court to a Baltimore court.

Attorneys said the action was requested by defense lawyers on the ground they could not get a fair trial in Montgomery County. Defendants are Robert J. Wolfe, the plane's pilot, and Arthur Hyde, owner of Congressional Airport.

In Cancer Drive 100% . . .

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan announced yesterday that the Utilities Commission staff has reached 100 per cent participation in the current Cancer Campaign.

Flanagan, who is also chairman of the District Government Division of the Cancer Campaign said, "The principal significance of such results is that each contributing employe has been furnished with the educational literature dealing with cancer. In combating the dread disease this is just as important as the receipt of the contribution itself."

Lane Names Woman

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, has appointed Miss Vivian Simpson, Rockville, Md., lawyer, to membership on a State commission which will study workmen's compensation laws. The commission to to report on its findings to the Governor and the 1949 General Assembly.

2 Suspects Held, Money Recovered In Bank Robbery

Pound, Va., April 16 (AP).—Two armed men robbed the Peoples Bank yesterday of an estimated $50,000 and a short while later the money had been recovered and two suspects were in custody.

State police captured a man they listed as Homer Bates of Wheelwright, Ky., in a rock quarry about 3 miles from here. The man, wounded in the arm and abdomen, was removed to a Norton hospital.

At nearby Jenkins, Ky., Police Chief R. L. Lester reported the arrest of Fred Blackburn, 23, also of Wheelwright, by Jenkins and Virginia State police. Lester said Blackburn was return to Pound this afternoon.

Virginia troopers found the wounded man at the base of Pine Mountain, which forms a natural boundary between Virginia and Kentucky.

Two bags of money and a bundle of currency were found under a small rock cliff in the quarry near where police captured Bates. Lester said a sack of money was found in Blackburn's car at the time of his arrest.

The holdup men forced Barr, cashier, into a vault while they scooped up the cash. Barr said he "came out shooting" as the men left. One of the holdup men was seen to tumble into an automobile commandeered by his companion.

Postlude

Tradition Is Served By Quartet

By Paul Hume

Tradition ruled the first in a series of five concerts by the Budapest String Quartet last night in the Library of Congress.

Haydn, Schumann and Beethoven, three familiar names in music; and four men whose playing is famous throughout the land for its high standards. The music lived up to its established reputation, with Haydn and Beethoven easy winners. The quartet did not always meet its best past performances of these works. Intonation was a bother in the rapid Haydn passages, and again in the Schumann quartet, notably in the finale.

Stylistically the players were in good form, but little can revive the two last movements of Schumann's third quartet, though it is blessed with a beautiful opening movement. The old story of rhythmic monotony tells heavily against the closing sections of a work which dates from the same year as Schumann's first nervous breakdown.

The present series by the Budapest will bring its hearers all but one of the Opus 76 quartets of Haydn. These are jewels in the realm of music. They stand with the works of Beethoven as examples of greatness in economy of means. At the same time they achieve maximum expressiveness. We come all too slowly to recognize Haydn's true stature, but these quartets do much to further the cause.

Beethoven's final quartet, Opus 135 in F Major is unique for the way in which it glows after the shadows of the C sharp, and A minor quartets. It is relaxed after the tremendous frenzy of the great fugue, and reflects back in fitting manner upon the steady rise in power of the final six quartets. All six of these will also be played in the present series.

The suggestion has been made that chronology be reversed: that the Beethoven quartets open the program, allowing the audience greater ease as the evening progresses, ending up with Haydn. Thus, when attention has been strained for nearly two hours, and the auditorium grows warm, the listener is not asked for the greatest degree of concentration. We would not mind such a change.

Rebel Democrats To Fall in Line, Farley Predicts

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, expressed belief today the Southern Democrats' revolt will not break up the party.

"It is quite disturbing," said the former Postmaster General in an interview here. "There seems to be no doubt that Mr. Truman is going to permit his name to go before the Democratic National Convention.

"I cannot conceive of him changing his mind. But I am hopeful that something can be done to resolve the differences and settle the dispute that are threatening Democratic chances for victory in November."

"At this moment I cannot conceive of any breakup of the present party lines into a sort of Liberal-Conservative division. The old party ties are too deep and strong."

He said Wallace "is now doing a disservice to his country." He added that the third party presidential candidate may get perhaps six to seven million votes.

Farley, who came here as a guest of honor at a book and author dinner tonight, said Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) "is better known throughout the whole country than any other Southern Democrat at this time. Byrd has a "deserved reputation as a fine American statesman" he added. He said he believed Byrd would be first choice of the dissident Southern Democrats if the revolt is carried through over Truman's civil rights program.

Student Strikers Offered VFW Aid

Keyser, W. Va., April 16 (AP).—Striking students at the Potomac State School had the word of a nearby Veterans of Foreign Wars official today that the VFW would "support them to the finish."

Charles Bolyard, commander of Queens Point Memorial Post, McCoole, Md., told 300 strikers the VFW would "fight to the finish any attempt by the school authorities or the Veterans Administration to deny veterans their benefits under the GI Bill of Rights as a result of the strike."

The walkout began last Monday in protest against the expulsion of Gene Cotrill, 25-year-old Navy veteran from Bridgeport, W. Va.; and 18-year-old Dortha Christopher of Kingwood, W. Va. The two students had violated a late-hour regulation.

Librarian Resigns

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16.—Mrs. Bettie V. Griffith, librarian of the Wallace Library here, has resigned, effective June 1. A successor is expected to be appointed soon by the library board. Mrs. Griffith is the wife of Dr. Wayne Griffith, assistant professor of English at Mary Washington College.

18-Year-Old Girl 'Bosses' School for Day

An 18-year-old girl was "boss" yesterday at Anacostia High School, 16th and R sts. ne.

Mary Ann Burgess of 4405 3d st. se., president of the school's student council, took over the job as principal from Mrs. Opal H. Corkery as the school marked its second annual "student day."

All positions on the school staff, janitor, gardener, engineer, clerk, nurse and teacher, were filled by the youngsters.

The regular staff showed up for work but spent most of the day sitting outside offices or in the rear of classrooms.

The biggest thrill for the "faculty for a day" was eating in the teachers' lunchroom while the regular faculty had to stand in line and push trays in the student cafeteria.

Seventeen-year-old Tom Beck, 3401 A st. se., was assistant principal and his job was to deal with disciplinary problems.

He found that he had nothing to do. The 1100 students enrolled at the school turned in a model performance.

Mrs. Corkery described the day as a big success.

"It gives students an insight into the general administration of the school and into some of our problems," she said.

C. W. Lippold Rites Monday; Ex-Policeman

Requiem mass for Charles W. Lippold, 64, former Metropolitan policeman, will be said at Nativity Church, 13th and Peabody sts. nw., at 9 a. m. Monday, after prayers at his late residence. Burial will be in Washington National Cemetery.

Mr. Lippold died Thursday at his home, 5809 6th st. nw. He had been in ill health for several years.

A native of Washington, he was a policeman for about 10 years prior to 1918. He was later connected with the Prudential Life Insurance Co. and had worked as a building guard until a heart ailment forced his retirement three years ago.

Mr. Lippold attended the old Business High School, now Roosevelt High. He was active in the Holy Names Society and in the Association of Oldest Inhabitants.

Surviving ar ehis wife, Mrs. Mary Ruppert Lippold; a son, Charles R. Lippold of Cleveland, Ohio; three daughters, Mrs. Mary L. Brannock, Mrs. Frances L. White and Miss Doris K. Lippold; a brother, John Lippold; three sisters, Mrs. Annie L. Jones, Mrs. Dora L. Jenkins and Mrs. Barbara L. Higbee, all of Washington, and five grandchildren.

Lists Closed for State Highway Summer Jobs

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—The State Highway Department has closed applications for summer work with field crews, a spokesman said today.

Approximately 100 persons, mostly high school and college engineering students, have been employed for summer assignments with surveying crews. The spokesman said crews have been filled for this year.

SCC Levies $100 Fine On Insurance Firm

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission has imposed a fine of $100 on L. W. T. Bulifant, Inc., of Petersburg, for a violation of Virginia insurance law, records of the SCC showed today.

The Petersburg firm was charged with placing a contract of insurance in Virginia with the American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa., when it was not licensed to handle that company's line.

Child Injury Rise Is Laid To Parents

The blame for the increasing number of traffic injuries among children in Greater Washington belongs on the shoulders of their parents.

That was the unanimous opinion of area school safety patrol coordinators gathered at a meeting yesterday in the District office of the American Automobile Association. Their recommendations for halting the spiral were:

1. Urge parents to teach youngsters respect for traffic signals, crosswalks markings and safety patrol orders.

2. Encourage car-driving parents to approach schools in picking up children on the school side of the street, eliminating the necessity for youngsters to cross over in entering vehicles.

3. Erection of additional warning signals in school zones. A large metal cutout of a policeman located in the center of streets near school structures was particularly recommended.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the District Police Traffic Devision, added that parents should avoid coming early to school zones. He said frequently this led ot parking in restricted areas, thereby creating additional hazards.

He declared the rate of increase of child injuries in the District was commensurate with the jump in overall traffic and urged public cooperation to reduce the rate.

George R. Hammond, director of safety and education of the iDstrict division of the AAA, presided at the session. Among those present were safety patrol coordinators from each precinct of the District; Pvt. Frank Palmer, Arlington County coordinator; Sergt. Lewis Shumate, Fairfax County, and Corpl. C. O. Seek, Montgomery County.

C. C. Cappel Dies; Managed Symphony

Clarence C. Cappel, 61, manager of the Baltimore Symphony and former manager of the National Symphony, died yesterday of a heart ailment at Sinai Hospital, Baltimore, after an illness of several months.

Mr. Cappel

He was manager of the National Symphony from 1932 until 1941, when he became manager of the newly organized Baltimore Symphony. He directed national tours of the United States Marine Band for 21 years and during World War II was for a time director of the USO-Camp Shows Concert division.

Born in Bellefontaine, Ohio, Mr. Cappel played clarinet and piano in the Bellefontaine opera house while still in his teens. He later was a Chautauqua musician and toured the country with his own orchestra.

Originated Watergate Concerts

After World War I he became manager of a Chautauqua circuit, and from that time on was always affilited with the management of concert bureaus.

Mr. Cappel was credited with bringing many outstanding concert attractions to Washington, including the Ballet Russe and the San Carlo Opera Company.

In 1935, Mr. Cappel originated the summer concerts by the National Symphony at the Watergate near the Lincoln Memorial. He also started summer chamber music concerts at Meridian Park.

Much of the National Symphony's growth from an obscure symphony to one of the Nation's best known musical organizations is attributed to his management. For many years he handled financial arrangements, business policy and sale of tickets for the symphony.

Speeches Promoted Symphony

Mr. Cappel spoke before school and parent-teacher groups in the Greater Washington area in his work with the symphony. He also acted as commentator at student concerts.

Survivors include his wife, the former Helen Ware, concert violinist; two sons, Andor Ware Cappel, New York artist; E. Dan Cappel, student at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson N. Y., and two daughters, Mrs. Will Geer, New York actress and Miss Helen C. Cappel, student at Bennington College Bennington, Vt.

John T. Schrider

Requiem mass for John T. Schrider, 77, retired grocer and life-long resident of Silver Spring, will be said today at 11 a. m. in St. Michael's Church, Silver Spring. Burial will be in St. John's Cemetery, Forest Glen.

Mr. Schrider died Thursday at his home, 607 Sligo ave., after an illness of several years. He was born and lived in the same neighborhood all of his life. About eight years ago he retired from the grocery business at his store at 607 Sligo ave. The store was a Silver Spring landmark.

Mr. Schrider was a member of the Holy Name Society. He is survived by five children, William Earl, 615 Sligo ave.; Mrs. Mary Abell and Mrs. Marion Tyler, both at home; John D. Schrider, Colesville, Md., and Charles Thomas Schrider, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Also one brother, Thomas Henry Schrider, and a sister, Mrs. Susan Pyles, both of Washington, and two grandchildren.

Three Groups Assemble

Patriotic Societies Convene in Capital

By Genevieve Reynolds

Approximately 600 members of patriotic societies streamed into Washington yesterday to attend the opening sessions of their favorite organizations. They came from every State in the Union and will remain through the week-long national convention of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution which will open Monday following a round of parties over the weekend.

The Mayflower Hotel lobby and corridors, conclave headquarters for the majority of the groups, looked like the Union Station on Christmas Eve.

A strong national defense, support of universal military training and the Selective Service draft were echoed at meetings held by the National Society, Daughters of the American Colonists, Daughters of Colonial Wars and the National Society, Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States. Speakers addressing each of the groups also warned against subversive elements. In the patriotic gatherings the admonitions were greeted with tumultuous applause.

Senator Capehart Speaks

Senator Homer Capehart, Republican of Indiana, addressed the Dames of the Loyal Legion of the U. S. A. yesterday at the luncheon meeting of their forty-ninth annual conference.

He told the women that this country is "better prepared to face a war threat than any time in history," and that we are better prepared for war than any other nation not actually engaged in combat.

To substantiate his opinion the Senator pointed out that we have 14 million trained men "from the last war who could be returned to their same units and duties; we have "the greatest Navy in the world's history in active duty or on a quick stand-by basis," as well as the great productive capacity created in World War II.

Other speakers at the luncheon session were Dr. Robert L. Kincaid, president of Lincoln Memorial University which is supported by the Dames of the Loyal Legion, and Ulysses S. Grant 3d, president of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Mrs. Edward C. Rumpler, president of the women's society, presided at the meeting.

Business sessions of the conference were highlighted by election of Mrs. Frances E. Curtiss of Detroit, Mich., as new president to succeed Mrs. Rumpler.

Colonists Meet

The urgency of quick passage of legislation for Universal Military Training was explained to the Daughters of American Colonists yesterday by Joseph Grew, our former Ambassador to Japan.

The patriotic women opened their twenty-seventh annual general assembly yesterday at Mayflower Hotel with some 250 delegates arriving from every part of the United States. Mr. Grew's talk highlighted the program of the candlelight supper.

Until the United Nations is in a position to guarantee international peace and security, the former envoy declared, "it would be the height of folly to leave our military defenses in their present weakened condition."

Political Apathy Decried by Women

"Political apathy is the greatest foe of democracy. The whole idea of democracy is based upon the importance of the individual—his rights and his corresponding responsibilities. No American citizen can say my vote doesn't matter." So declared Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, executive director, Women's Division, Democratic National Committee.

One of several speakers at the opening session of the National Order of Women Legislators' annual convention banquet last night, she urged men and women of both political parties to use their privileges and rights to vote.

"Men and women alike are faced with the problems arising out of our intricate economic organization, the threats and promises of atomic fission," explained Mrs. Woodhouse. "Our common job is to find the solution. Else we perish. There is more than enough for every one of us to do.

"There is no time for the practice or discussion of sex discrimination," she continued. "Every citizen — man or woman — must have full opportunity to function to the limits of his or her ability in our political organizations. Also each must make his or her maximum contribution to our great task of maining a stable economic structure without booms or busts, and to creating an atmosphere for peace."

Mrs. Woodhouse emphasized that our first great need in 1948 is for greater intelligent interest in public affairs on the part of more citizens. "A closely related need is for more widespread knowledge of our economic organization," she asserted.

Discussing "Women's Role in National Affairs," Miss Marion Martin, Commissioner of Labor and Industry for the State of Maine, told the same 200 delegates present that women should take a leaf from the men's book and consider their terms in State Legislatures as training ground for seats in Congress.

"Too frequently women vote for other women just because they wear skirts," she opined. "What they should do is to cast their ballot for the qualified persons, regardless of sex."

During the afternoon session Miss Jane Tood, Deputy Commissioner of Commerce in New York State, discussed the "Equal Pay Bill for Equal Work" passed by the Empire State.

In another speech Mrs. Rachel Nason, field supervisor of the Women's Bureau, stressed the importance of sound labor legislation for women.

Reporters May Disagree But—

Editors Are Easy to Please, Says Secretary of U. S. Group

Though a lot of reporters may challenge her belief, Mrs. Alice Fox Pitts of Wilmington, Del., is convinced that editors are easy to please.

MRS. PITTS

As assistant secretary of the American Society of Newspaper Editors for the past 16 years, vivacious Alice Pitts should certainly know whereof she speaks.

Yesterday, enmeshed in a web of details connected with the editors' annual meeting at the Statler, she could still smile and say:

It was because she "knew the right person," says Mrs. Pitts, that she got the job with the editors society back in 1932. He is A. H. Kirchhofer, managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News, who was then secretary of the society.

"Some of the editors thought they needed a man for this job," says Mrs. Pitts, pointing out that of the 500 members of the ASNE, only five are women. "Mr. Kirchhofer is very fair-minded, though, and always believed that if women can do the work, they shouldn't be discriminated against."

Editing the society's monthly bulletin is one of Mrs. Pitts' duties as assistant secretary. She does most of the work at home and finds time, too, to collaborate with her husband, Frederick Pitts, on a daily syndicated column "He and She." She has also found time to raise a family of four children, ranging in ages from 10 to 30.

A member of the first class in journalism at the Pulitzer School of Columbia University, Mrs. Pitts has been writing or working for newspapers most of her life "between babies."

On the Party Calendar

Burmese Party Marks New Year

By Elisabeth Maguire

GUESTS at the Burmese Embassy last evening were sprinkled with scented water and bunched with small pink roses. The occasion celebrated the Burmese New Year which falls on April 16 this year. The Burmese calendar includes only 29 or 28 days in a month, according to the moon, and last year their New Year Day fell on April 17.

The scented water was a concession to American customs. In Burma guests would be doused with buckets of water, and for three days there would be danger all over town of a liberal drenching from garden hoses.

An elaborate buffet last evening included special Burmese foods—curried shrimps, turkey and beef, crisp noodles and fish in bean sauce with ginger and chestnuts—all topped with sweets and coffee.

THE United States Representative on the UN Commission on Narcotic Drugs and Mrs. Harry J. Anslinger attended the presentation of the film "To the Ends of the Earth" at the Warner Theater Thursday evening. Mr. Anslinger cooperated with Hollywood in producing this film, and is shown in the film, in several sequences, at his post as United States delegate at Lake Success.

The Treasury's Commissioner and Mrs. Anslinger entertained afterwards at the Palladian Room at the Shoreham. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mosier, Miss Ellen La Mott, Mrs. E. Crane Chadbourne, Col. and Mrs. H. S. Kimberly, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gray.

MRS. AUBREY CARTWRIGHT of New York, Palm Beach and Antibes, France, current visitor in Washington, was entertained round the clock yesterday. Clarence Hewes gathered friends in for luncheon in her honor, and in the evening Mrs. Nance Morgan entertained for her at a dinner at the 1925 F Street Club.

This evening Mrs. Cartwright will be entertained at dinner by the Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy and Mrs. Mangor.

Niblock--Stuarts To Be Honored

The Air and Military Attache of the Legation of South Africa, Lieut. Col. N. G. Niblock-Stuart, and Mrs. Niblock-Stuart are returning to South Africa. Today a cocktail party will be given in their honor by the Counselor of the Legation and Mrs. T. H. Eustace.

Those expected to attend include the wife of the South African Minister, Mrs. Andrews, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Edward Sturdevant, Gen. and Mrs. John Chapman, Air Commodore and Mrs. Findlay of the New Zealand Legation, Mrs. J. S. Reid, Group Capt. and Mrs. M. O. Watson, and Group Capt. and Mrs. R. C. Jonas. There will be about 50 guests in all.

Maret School Holds Fiesta

Pupils of the Maret School last evening put on a play with songs and dances in Spanish. Mrs. Basil Berg was directress for the evening, which was called "Fiesta Pan Americana."

The daughters of the Argentine Naval Attache, Beatriz and Laurecia Rumbo, took part as did Anne Baube, daughter of the French counselor, and Tarvin Dacallou, daughter of a former Persian official.

Other starlets included Yanne Kroyt, Claiborne Philips, Nancy Perau, Jack Briggs, Anne Murray Wells, Margaret Lynn, Frances Shapiro, Anne Ramser, Patricia Hicks, Barbara Griffin and Yvonne Gimbel.

Women Swell Jewish Relief Fund

Washington's current drive for funds to aid Jewish displaced persons in Europe reached $190,000 yesterday. This was the amount announced after a tabulation made following the $100 Minimum Gift luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel which was attended by more than 925 women.

The luncheon was sponsored by the District division of the Women's Division of the National United Jewish Appeal for Relief and Rehabilitation. Members have set a goal of $250,000 and expect to obtain the remaining $60,000 through continued solicitation during the next few weeks.

Guest speakers at the luncheon were Mrs. Ernest Wadel of Dallas, Tex., national chairman, and Mme. Fanny Barzilai, formerly of Athens, Greece, who spent 2½ years in a concentration camp in Poland. They were introduced by Mrs. Edward Cafritz, district chairman. Mrs. Samuel Dodek read the invocation.

Mme. Barzilai told a story of horror, murder and death in a concentration camp and described miserable conditions in today's displaced persons camps.

"When war was over everyone criticized German barbarism," she said. "Yet today 250,000 are still behind barbed wire. If it were not for the generosity of American Jews they would be dead."

She said it would be dangerous to leave these people in camps much longer for, if their despair continues, they may lose hope entirely and turn on their guards.

Mme. Barzilai was born in Poland and married a Greek. When the German army arrived in Athens, she and members of her family were sent to Auschwitz in Poland. There she saw her husband and four other relatives murdered. After her release she served as an official interpreter for the British Army in Germany. She came to this country to help the unfortunate Jews who cannot leave Europe.

Mrs. Wadel, who returned five weeks ago from an extensive tour of displaced persons camps in Europe, said, "I was horrified to find people living in such conditions three years after the peace. It is scandalous and their only hope is the help they will receive from people such as you."

She decried the reversal of the United States policy on the Palistine partition and said that the Jews in Europe's camps will go to Palestine even though they die in doing so. They would rather die fighting for a country of their own than to remain any longer behind barbed wire, she said.

Rights Denied, Women Insist

Are women being denied rights they ought to have?

The answer may surprise men. It's "yes," say the women.

They asked the question and gave the answer yesterday before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee. No man appeared to dispute them.

They turned out to support a proposal by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) to set up a commission to study the legal status of women in this country.

Frieda S. Miller, director of the Women's Bureau, Labor Department, said in a statement that some of the discriminations against women "are small but stubborn."

The American Civil Liberties Union sided with the women.

Others who sent spokesmen to support the Taft proposal included the Congress for Industrial Organization, the National Council of Jewish Women, the American Association of University Women, and the League of Women Voters.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Eleanor Graham Cooley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Cooley of Beltsville, and Chandler Seymour Robbins were married yesterday in St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church, Laurel Md. The Rev. Reginald F. Hall officiated at the ceremony at 4 o'clock. Mr. Robbins is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Samuel D. Robbins of Belmont, Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory faille, fashioned on princess lines with train. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiara of pearl orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Cora Lee Shipley of Branchville, Md., was maid of honor, dressed in blue marquisette and carrying a bouquet of salmon pink gladioli. The bridesmaid, Miss Sarah Catherine France of Arlington, was costumed like the maid of honor, and carried rose-colored gladioli.

Roger Wellington Robbins, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were the Rev. Samuel Dowse Robbins, jr., of Neillsville, Wis., another brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. Edwin G. Davis of Washington.

The bride attended Duke University and received her B. S. degree from the University of Maryland. She received an M. S. degree from Cornell University. Mr. Robbins was graduated from Harvard University, and is now doing work in zoology at George Washington University. He is the grandson of Prof. Arthur Bliss Seymour of Harvard University.

Wagner—Zirkle

Miss Anna Frances Zirkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Zirkle of Arlington, Va., became the bride of Robert W. Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Wagner, also of Arlington, April 13 at Clarendon Methodist Church. The Rev. C. Fred Williams officiated and Mr. Zirkle gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride was gowned in white lace with a finger-tip veil of illusion held by a tiara ornamented in pearls. She carried white orchids with her prayer book. Mrs. Joseph Parlas attended her sister as matron of honor, wearing blue dotted swiss and carrying an old-fashioned bouquet.

Lowell Wagner was best man for his brother, and Joseph Parlas and Sergt. Jack Schofield were ushers.

Pittle—Montes

Miss Jeanette F. E. Montes, daughter of Mrs. Angeline Montes and the late Manuel Montes, was married to Louis A. Pittle, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Pittle, April 10 in the study of Rabbi Harry Silverstone, who officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a navy blue suit with white and gold accessories and a corsage of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Murray Pittle were attendants.

Beach—Gibbons

Miss Alice Louisa Gibbons, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chastine Gibbons of this city, was married to Archie Rhundles Beach, son of Cecil Beach and the late Mrs. Beach, April 10, at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the Rev. Robert Kell officiating.

Thomas Gibbons gave his sister in marriage. She wore white satin with a veil of illusion held by orange blossoms and carried a white prayer book overlaid with an orchid.

Mrs. Corvel Proctor, gowned in pink taffeta and carrying an old-fashioned bouquet of mixed flowers, was her sister's matron of honor. Misses May Butler and Mary Hopkins, similarly costumed in blue, were bridesmaids. The bride's niece, Elaine Proctor, wearing pink net, was flower girl.

Robert Beach was best man, and the ushers were James, Beverly, Harry and Warren Beach, all brothers of the bridegroom.

Snyek—Thrush

Georgetown Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Louise Thrush and Henry Synek April 10 with the Rev. John Bailey Kelly officiating. The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Thrush of Arlington, Va., was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snyek of Chicago, Ill.

The bride was gowned in white marquisette and a silk lace veil and she carried calla lilies. Her sister, Miss Sarah Thrush, maid of honor, wore green marquisette and carried spring flowers.

Richard Moraz of Wilmington, Del., was best man, and the ushers were Joseph Synek, jr., of Chicago, brother of the bridegroom; Frederick Laise of Arlington and Dr. Howard Kimball of Phoenix, Ariz.

The bride was graduated from University of North Carolina, attended graduate school at Simmons College in Boston and also did graduate work at University of Chicago. She is a medical social worker at Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago.

Tabb—Kasnett

Miss Justine F. Kasnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kasnett of this city, was married to Gilbert S. Tabb, son of Hyman Tabb and the late Mrs. Tabb, at Ohev Sholom Synagogue April 11. Rabbi S. Green and H. Segal officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore blush satin with a finger-tip veil attached to a seed pearl coronet. She carried orchids and roses. Mrs. Phyllis Kasnett, matron of honor, was gowned in coral crepe and carried yellow roses and Miss Louise Ross, maid of honor, wore blue silk and carried pink roses. Joan Margolius, in blue organdy and with yellow roses in her hair, was flower girl.

Walter Cohn was best man and the ushers were Leonard Kasnett, Robert Kasnett, Leon Eisenstad, Bernard Brill, Dr. Shelton Kasnett and Gerald Datlow.

After a reception at the synagogue the couple left for New York. They will reside in Washington. Both the bride and bridegroom attended George Washington University and the bride also attended Peabody Institute of Music.

What Is Best Basement Paint?

We would like to paint our basement walls white. The walls are made of cement blocks and damp at times. What would you suggest? A Reader.

There is a water-proofing product on the market which comes in powder form and is mixed with water, then scrubbed onto the cement blocks. When it is thoroughly dry, paint can be applied over it. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy. For further information call NAtional 1703.

Do you have a recipe for sausage? While I was ill my husband purchased pork chops which are mostly fat, say about half and half. Would these do for pork sausage? M. O.

Yes, you can use the chops for sausage. Here is a recipe:

Sausage

Mix lean and fat pork together thoroughly; stir in seasonings and store in the refrigerator for at least 12 hours for the seasonings to blend before using. To use, pan broil or fry until thoroughly cooked.

What type black fabric should I use to add about three inches to a nubby black wool spring coat? Matching fabric cannot be found. Would a wide set-in belt or a band at the hem be more appropriate? J. H. C.

Since you can't match the fabric, you might choose a fabric which is entirely different in texture from the coat fabric so there will be a pleasing contrast. Perhaps a heavy black faille or satin could be used if the coat is dressy rather than sporty in design. Or use a band of smooth black wool coating and make it blend with the other by adding some interesting hand stitchery at the seam where they are joined. For the stitchery you could use either black thread or some lovely colors in chain, cable or even running stitches placed very evenly and decoratively. Experiment a little to get a combination of stitches or colors which would be attractive.

Whether you place the band at the waist or at the bottom will depend upon your figure. If you are tall and slender, it would look well at the waist. If you are short and plump, it should go at the bottom. Here's one thought, however: More work will be involved in placing the piece at the waistline than if you place it on the bottom.

I wish to store my rug (9 by 12 wool) in a basement. What precautions should be taken beforehand, such as cleaning and moth-proofing, in order to protect it? B. S.

Because of the high humidity and possibility of mildew here during the summer, storing your wool rug in the basement is not to be recommended. I would suggest you exhaust every upstairs possibility for storing, or consider sending it to a professional rug storer, before taking a chance on basement storage. To prepare it for storage at home, clean the rug well on both sides with a vacuum sweeper. Spray it with liquid insecticide and sprinkle evenly all over with moth preventing crystals or flakes. Roll up, with the flakes between each layer, tie and wrap securely in strong paper or a paper case for rugs which can be purchased where moth bags are sold. Sealing edges of covering paper is advisable.

Home Economists To Hear Mrs. Husted On Public Relations

Mrs. Marjorie Child Husted, of Minneapolis, Minn., the original "Betty Crocker," will be principal speaker at the meeting of the Washington chapter of Home Economics Women in Business Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the YWCA.

MRS. HUSTED

Mrs. Husted, who is public relations chairman for the American Home Economics Society, will speak on "Public Relations Begin With You." Mrs. Grace Landregan, chairman of the District Home Economics Women in Business, will preside at the dinner meeting. Members of the District Dieteties Association will be guests, as well as other members of the American Home Economics Association.

One of the best-known home economists in the United States, Mrs. Husted is a wife and homemaker as well as a career woman. For almost 20 years she has planned and prepared the Betty Crocker program. She now serves as consultant on women's activities for the milling company which sponsors it.

850 Dogs Entered For Kennel Show To Be April 24

A dog show expected to be the largest ever held in the Washington area will take place April 24 at the ball park on Route 1, Alexandria, according to the show committee of the Old Dominion Kennel Club, staging the event.

Almost 850 dogs will compete, and so many last-moment entries were received that additional judges had to be obtained to handle the large classes.

Heywood Hartley of Richmond, well-known breeder, kennel club official and judge, will pass upon some of the hound breeds, hitherto assigned to Frank Foster Davis of Ventnor, N. J., while Mrs. Raymond M. Wilmotte of Georgetown will take both miniature and standard poodles.

Sponsoring this sporting event, the American Business Club of Alexandria announces as beneficiaries the Children's Hospital of Washington and the St. Mary's and St. Paul's Boys Clubs of Alexandria.

Rotarians Place Wreath At Mt. Vernon

As part ow the 187th eastern Virginia Rotary conference in Alexandria, Rotary members yesterday went to Mount Vernon and placed a wreath on the tomb of George Washington.

The wreath-laying party was headed by Tom A. Warren, of Bournemouth, England, past International Rotary president.

The two-day conference attended by several hundred Rotarians and their wives wound up last night with a banquet and ball at the George Washington High School in Alexandria.

Yesterday's activities began with a conference breakfast at 8 a. m. in the Lee Room of Alexandria's George Mason Hotel.

Later, in the auditorium of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial, Rotarians heard addresses by Past District Governor Claude W. Woodward of Richmond, 180th District Governor Howard S. LeRoy of Washington and Past District Governor William McC. Paxton of Norfolk.

Herndon Club President Grayson B. Hanes presided over a luncheon in the Lee Room of the George Mason Hotel, with Leesburg Club President C. B. Ahalt in charge of another luncheon meeting in the hotel's banquet hall.

At the same time, women of the Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, Herndon and Leesburg Rotary Clubs held a luncheon and style show in the Terrace Room at Washington National Airport.

Billiard Pro Kidnaped; 3 Men Held

An hour later police in Burbank, about 10 miles distant, found him unharmed and arrested three men who were with him. Detective H. D. McDonald said they gave their names as Joe Yeargain, jr., 33, Sacramento; Floyd Ervin, 29, San Francisco, and Peter Zolna, 35, of San Diego. They were booked on suspicion of kidnaping.

Whalen said he was walking with his 2-year-old grandson, John F. Buck, when three men alighted from a car and snapped handcuffs on him, then forced him into the automobile.

Shortly afterward, Whalen's wife told Hollywood police, she received a phone call from an unidentified person who said "bring the rest of the diamonds out" and named a spot near Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in Burbank. She said she did not understand the reference, as her only diamond is set in a ring.

Russian-Finnish Treaty

Helsinki, Finland, April 16 (U.P.).—Premier Mauno Pekkala told Parliament today that the government would make ratification of the Russian-Finnish aid treaty a question of confidence. This means that the government would resign if ratification were not approved.

Mrs. Van Zandt Again Enlists in Army Nurse Corps

Van Zandt

She was sworn in yesterday at the Pentagon. Among a half dozen witnesses was the Congressman, a veteran of both World Wars and a past national commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Van Zandt served overseas 17 months as an Army nurse in World War II. She and the Congressman were married last year.

Russian Denies Marshall Charge In Trial of Japs

Tokyo, April 16 (U.P.).—Alexander N. Vasilyev, Soviet prosecutor at the war crimes trial of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 24 co-defendants, flatly contradicted an affidavit by Secretary of State George C. Marshall yesterday.

An affidavit from the wartime United States Chief of Staff had mentioned Japan's "strict neutrality" toward Soviet ships carrying lend-lease materials. The affidavit was presented by the defense as evidence of the allegedly mild nature of Japan's pre-Pearl Harbor cooperation with Germany.

Vasilyev said, "numerous facts confirm that a number of Soviet ships were attacked and sunk by the Japanese armed forces."

The only explanation for Marshall's statement, the Soviet prosecutor asserted, would be "the affiant not being aware of all these facts."

Alienist Fights Outdated, Says Dr. Overholser

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—The courtroom legal battle with medical-expert witnesses playing commanding roles will become a thing of the past if psychiatry's ultimate goal is achieved, the president of the American Psychitric Association said today.

Such contests where one mental expert says the defendant plugged her paramour while obviously insane and his counterpart for the prosecution says she was obviously sane and responsible have given psychiatry something of a black eye, said Dr. Winfred Overholser.

Dr. Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, and professor of psychiatry at George Washington University, spoke at a ve-State seminar on mental and nervous disorders.

Would Bar Medical Experts

The ideal legal psychiatric setup in crimes of violence, he said, would be a trial from which the medical experts were excluded.

Then, after guilt or innocence had been determined, a State-appointed board of psychiatrists, psychologists and probably a social service worker would make its recommendation on whether imprisonment, hospital confinement or probation would best serve the interests of society and the individual.

The differences of expert medical witnesses are not just based on "which side pays the bill," as people are prone to believe, he said.

Dr. Overholser said the psychiatrist himselff aces a fundamental difficulty because the law generally doesn't recognize any twilight State between sanity and insanity.

However, a trend in the right direction has been in evidence in recent years, the APA president said. Massachusetts and Michigan, for example, now require that psychiatric examinations be made immediately, in cases of such crimes as murder.

Sometimes Saves a Trial

He noted also that State laws permitting indeterminate confinement for defective delinquents and sexual psychopaths are a sign that the law is finally recognizing that the behavior of same may be black and that of others white, but further that there are a great many in the in-between or "gray" category.

Dr. Overholser, whose subject was "Forensic Psychiatry," noted the increasing appearance of mental expert witnesses in a number of other court cases. He said they were being called on more and more in accident claims for mental hurts and chancery matters such as will contests and divorces.

Film Show Here Releases Food Packages in Rome

One hundred six packages of foodstuffs will be distributed in Rome, Italy, today as result of a movie premiere here Tuesday, and its surprise climax yesterday.

The food, made up of $10 CARE packages, is to be released by cable order from a Rome warehouse, underwritten by proceeds from the benefit film showing and an unsolicited $169 collected by students of the Friends' School here.

Some $890 was realized from the benefit premiere showing at the Little Theater, 9th above F sts. nw., of the Italian film, "To Live In Peace." The school students, hearing of the benefit, sent their collection to the theater yesterday to swell the total.

Undisguised purpose of the benefit was to contribute food to needy Italian voters before the crucial elections Sunday in which communism and democracy are the issues.

U. S. to Retain 46 Locomotives Sought by Finland

They were "withdrawn from surplus" by ATC, the War Assets Administration announced. This means they no longer are for sale. It was not disclosed why ATC wants them.

The locomotives originally were built for lend-lease shipment to Russia, but the war ended before they were sent there.

When WAA put the locomotives up for sale in March Finland submitted the high bid—$1,666,900. There was criticism in Congress that the sale of the locomotives to Finland might add to Russia's war potential and WAA held up acceptance of the bid.

Darden to Address Sweet Briar Graduates

Sweet Briar, Va., April 16 (AP).—President Colgate W. Darden, jr., of the University of Virginia will be the speaker at Sweet Briar College's thirty-ninth annual commencement exercises May 31, President Martha B. Lucas announced today.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached Sunday morning, May 30, by the Rev. John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J.

Misdirected Drink Summons Firefighters

Atlanta, April 16 (AP).—A misdirected drink of water brought out every piece of firefighting equipment in downtown Atlanta last night, and threw almost everyone into a dither at mammoth Grady Hospital.

Later investigation revealed that an ambulance driver, bending over a drinking fountain, got his drink in the eye instead of his mouth, reached for a towel, but pulled a fire alarm box instead.

Shrine to Give Circus Preview In Parade Today

Davenport

Originating on F st. btween 4th and 5th sts., the line of march will be along F st. to 9th, up 9th to G, west on G to 15th, up 15th to K and east alonk K to the Almas Temple, 1315 K st. nw.

Howard P. Foley, managing director of the circus, will lead the procession in a decorated joop, followed by 300 texedoed and befezzed marching Shriners, eight floats, bands and various elements of the Shriners.

The circus itself, consisting of 40 acts, will be the finest ever presented by the Shrine, Producer Ornin Davenport of Chicago, declared. Davenport, a former bareback rider and performer with Ringling Brothers, Hagenback Wallace and other circuses, praised the arrangements made here for the perfomance.

Graduates to Get 40 Scholarships

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—Forty of Virginia's top high school graduates will receive $250 scholarships to the University of Virginia next fall under terms of an appropriation tucked away in the Sttae's new budget law, records of the General Assembly disclosed today.

The scholarship program represents one of the major aims of former Governor Colgate W. Darden, jr., now president of the university, to bring the institution closer to the people of Virginia.

Item 173½ of the Appropriations Act provides $10,000 per year for outright scholarships—not student loans—to graduates of Virginia high schools. The youths will be chosen according to scholastic qualifications set by the Board of Visitors.

Darden said today that details of the scholarship plan will be worked out so that high school seniors will be able to study qualifications and the procedure for making applications.

Maryland Plans Oyster Patrol of 28-Knot Craft

Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP).—By the beginning of the next oyster season in September, Maryland hopes to have a fleet of 28-knot patrol boats, fast enough to overhaul the swiftest oyster raiders.

Plans for 10 of the craft are now on the drafting boards of a marine architect, Executive Secretary David Wallace of the State Tidewater Fisheries Department said today.

As soon as the blueprints are finished, they will be sent to the budget and procurement department for approval and for the placing of bids by shipbuilders, he said.

These swift twin-screw craft will replace part of the present fleet of 35 obsolete, 10-knot craft, which have been outdistanced by speedy poachers illegally dredging for oysters in banned areas of Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

The new Tidewater patrol boats are expected to cost about $10,000 apiece. Preliminary designs show a cruiser-type, V-bottom craft with sleeping accommodations for four and powered by two 150-horsepower engines. High-powered rifles are to be kept aboard.

Auto Kills Man Near Berwyn, Md.

A pedestrian was fatally injured when struck by an automobile on U. S. Route 1 near Berwyn about 7:40 o'clock last night.

The man, about 45 years old, was believed by Maryland State Police to be a William Lopez. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, at 8 p. m. State Police were investigating.

College Weekly Names Its Staff for 1948-49

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16 (Spl.).—The Bullet, campus weekly at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, at a twentieth anniversary dinner announced the following members of its editorial staff for 1948-49:

Anna Dulany, Manassas; Maude Levey, Sara-Primm Turner and Beverley Steel, Richmond; Betty Phillips and Margaret Diller, Arlington; Mary Hardwick, Fort Belvoir; Carol Bailey, Herndon, and Patricia Bradshaw, Fredericksburg.

Nanticoke to Drop High School Courses

Nanticoke, Md., April 16 (AP).—The Wicomico County Board of Education has decided to discontinuetinue high school courses at Nanticoke School and transport pupils to Wicomico County High School in Salisbury.

The high school has an enrollment of 29 this year but the board decided there will be so few pupils next year that high school courses are not justified. Two Nanticoke High teachers will be transferred to Salisbury.

Virginia Tax Balance

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett reported to Governor Tuck today that the State department of taxation finished up its fiscal year last June with an unexpended appropriation balance of $48,136.66.

The audit showed that the State taxation department kept its accounts and records in good order and said that special care was evident in the preparation of the records of the beverage division.

One on the Aisle—

Faye Has a Role At Krum Elbow

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT THE TOWN: Faye Emerson is in a tough spot these days and she's behaving with a disarming quality—friendliness plus dignity—that would bring out the Louella Parsons in the stoniest mortal . . . Everyone knows that she's Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt of a thousand front pages, but these weeks she's working on being Faye Emerson of the stage and screen . . . Yes, the stage came first for the brown-eyed daughter-in-law of the late President . . . She did plays on the Coast before going into all those movies that were revived in every grind house in the country when she married. She'll soon be 31 and doesn't mind saying so . . . Used to be a blonde in pictures, though her hair's naturally dark, which brings good natured taunts from her husband . . . It's a sleek russet now for her role in the National's "The Play's the Thing." . . . Like every theater person you talk to these days, Faye tells you she's been reading new scripts, finding few good ones . . . Her favorite role is the one which suggests Dorothy Parker in "Here Today," which didn't do too well by Ruth Gordon eight seasons ago . . . Faye has been playing "Here Today" the past several summers, but this one she wants to be at Hyde Park with the children . . . As you know, there are hordes of Roosevelt youngsters and it's a mighty clannish family into which the girl from the Coast has entered with evident zest . . . Both as Faye Emerson and as Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, she feels pretty keenly about the present tendency to call everyone a Commie who doesn't agree with what passes for one's opinion . . . As Ilona she's got a vague sort of role (if you don't think so, note that everyone recalls that Holbrook Blinn created the Calhern part but hasn't a clew who did the original feminine lead) . . . Hence, it's not an easy spot for a lady about whom everyone's bound to be curious . . . But with real charm added to natural beauty, she should be able to lick the challenge . . . When one of the local reviewers remarked that she registers emotions by "joining her hands and burying her nose in them, as if her fingers were so many fragrant violets," she plotted a telegram signed "Fragrant Violets," but felt too shy at the last minute to send it.

MRS. GEORGE MESTA, usually a resident of the society columns, has slipped into the theater business, if only briefly . . . The Capital hostess is heading the special committee for the National Symphony's benefit opening the new Playhouse Theater on Tuesday the 27th . . . Mrs. Mesta reports that seats for "The Search" at this decidedly posh event will be available only through the National Symphony office at 1727 K st. . . . "Donnors of $50 to the National Symphony can attend the opening; $5 of the $50 is for the seats, $45 is a gift to the symphony." . . , This has the effect of making it possible for first nighters to consider their donation as a charity come next March 15 . . . With a close-to-sellout audience, this means the symphony should be getting over $15,000 for the night, a hefty slice of the sum needed for the orchestra to continue next season . . . Write the orchestra, or phone its office at National 8410.

TONY AND SALLY, the DeMarco family, made it a quick trip downtown to headline the Capitol stage show after their weeks at the Shoreham Blue Room . . . They're still 'way up in the stratosphere of the ballroom dancers—with Mario and Floria closest of the lot to them, to be sure . . . The DeMarco special this trip is "Begin the Beguine," and it's mighty graceful watching . . . Also on the bill is an expert ventriloquist chap, Ray Walters . . . Any relation to Vox and Walters, Ray? . . . And Lynn Allison is staying a second week, along with Clifton Webb's "Sitting Pretty," which, by the way, is to have a sequel with Belvedere in collitch . . . Lynn solved her sitter problem for that baby . . . Ask her how.

SIDNEY LUST, the magnate of Suburbia, is tossing his annual baseball party Monday when the Nats tee off for the season . . . On his guest list are some 150 politicos, movie folk, businessmen and news guys. . . . So, if you want to reach your business contacts Monday afternoon, better be out at Griffith Stadium . . . Along with Starting Pitcher Truman.

TOM HODGE, new director of Britain's film services in this country, in town from his New York HQ. . . . Hodge used to be a schoolmaster and pioneered in educational film work. . . . Like so many overseas visitors, Hodge has roamed the U. S. A. more thoroughly than most natives, knows us better, in a sense, than we know ourselves. . . . And, by the way, likes us. . . . Now, he's off for a cross-country circuit of several months.

PIERRE TOUREILLE, who lately took over the French services held at St. John's Church and who teaches his native tongue at Maryland and GW, will be talking on French films Monday afternoon at the Dupont . . . He will see "Panic" at the day's first showing and then ensconce himself in the luonge for a chat with all comers who want to talk movies.

LIEUT COMDR. William R. Cronenwett of the Navy's motion picture section will be transferring to the Coast next week, but before he goes the Navy will be showing the young commander's latest assignment, "Naval Photography in Science." . . . This color film embodies a staggering number of scientific fields, will be used by the Navy for training and also will be loaned to civilian groups.

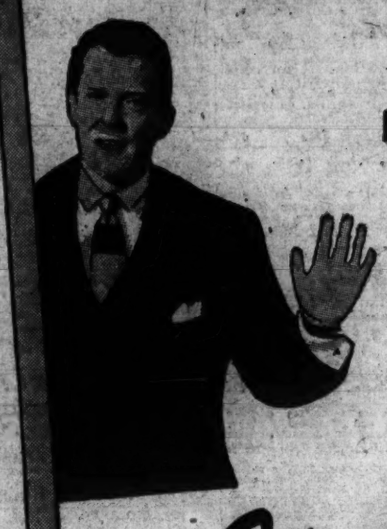
When you say "COME BACK AGAIN" It costs your carrier time and money



YOUR Washington Post carrier has to pay for the papers he's delivered whether he collects from you or not. So when you ask him to "come back later" because you're not prepared for his visit, it's money out of his pocket to meet his bill and time out of his day to call on you again.

If you work for a salary you expect to be paid the first time you see the paymaster on payday. If you run a business you expect your customers to send in their checks for your services promptly. You have expenses of your own and it takes money to meet them. Just so, your carrier depends on payment from you to take care of his expenses.

When you fail him on collection night it may mean a sacrifice of money he needs for immediate personal, home or school purposes. If you ask him to return later he's wasted the time that it took to visit you—and a carrier's life is a busy one. He has a seven-day-a-week early morning job in addition to going to school, doing his homework and joining in outside activities.

Be fair with your carrier. Pay him on time. And if you're moving, notify him in advance. Papers delivered after you've moved do you no good, and your carrier has to pay for them. If you don't see the boy, call NA. 4200 and tell Circulation.

Your carrier will thank you for your cooperation by giving you the best of service.

Va. Chamber Votes to Seek Subsidy Cuts

Norfolk, Va., April 16 (AP).—The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce declared war today against "governmental interference in business and social relationships" and elected N. W. Kelley of Roanoke president.

Kelley is president and treasurer of the Southern Varnish Company. He succeeds Wilfred A. Roper, Richmond bank president. Kelley is a member of the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber adopted a resolution that assailed "nonessential governmental functions and services," and provided that the Chamber shall:

(1) "Launch and effectively implement a program of 'more individual responsibility.'"

(2) Appoint a committee to induce businessmen to reduce costs of government by withdrawing their "support of and demand for every governmental subsidy and service" that can be supplied "through the exercise of individual or corporate responsibility."

(3) Study "ways and means of concentrating constructive effort toward the elimination of governmental interference in business and social relationships."

(4) Impress business "with the absolute necessity of strengthening and preserving individual initiative and freedom of enterprise."

Another resolution urged Congress to adopt a "firm declaration of policy with respect to governmentally produced electrical energy" and "that no further appropriations of any nature whatsoever be considered for these purposes save in the light of such policy declaration."

Officers named by the Chamber's directors to serve with Kelley are five vice presidents:

W. N. Neff of Abingdon, John B. Wise of Staunton, Basil Browder of Lanville, B. O. Hill of Suffolk and O. A. Reardon of Alexandria. Irving Markel and Walter N. Street, both of Richmond, were elected treasurer and assistant treasurer, respectively. Verbon E. Kemp of Richmond, was re-elected executive secretary.

Directors elected for one year are John B. Wise, Staunton; George F. Curtis, Norfolk; D. H. Goode, Martinsville; B. O. Hill, Suffolk; N. W. Kelley, Roanoke; Edwin T. Hyde, Richmond; J. N. Hunter, Natural Bridge; Stanley A. Owens, Manassas, and John Duval, Gloucester. William E. Wood, Richmond, was elected to serve the unexpired term of Charles J. Guyer, Richmond, who resigned.

Directors elected for three years are Charles A. Kramer, Fredericksburg; Edward I. Williams, Riverton; Robert C. Harnsberger, Luray; Dr. Charles E. Hunter, Hopewell; Joe F. Henderson, Richmond; W. I. Whitfield, Roanoke; A. Willis Bohannan, Petersburg; Dr. W. T. Sanger, Richmond; Lewis G. Chewning, Richmond; J. S. Bowers, Clifton Forge, and B. Winston Taliaferro, Charlottesville.

The two-day annual meeting wound up tonight with a banquet.

Page Vote Sought On School Bonds

Stanley, Va., April 16.—The Page County School Board has voted unanimously to hold a special $50,000 bond issue referendum.

The funds are sought for expansion of facilities at Stanley High School. Superintendent of Schools Cecil Graves stated yesterday that congestion at Stanley was the worst in the county.

The proposed additions to the school would include six classrooms, costing $43,000. The remaining $7000 would go to purchase equipment.

The board of supervisors and the Circuit Court must pass on the matter of a bond referendum.

4 Join Police Force In Alexandria

Alexandria Police Superintendent Maj. Edgar Sims yesterday appointed four new policemen to the city force. The new men, who will undergo a 30-hour special training course beginning this coming week, are:

William H. Sutton, 21, of 413 Duke st.; William J. Vaughn, 23, 323 Mansion dr.; Donald N. Evans, 21, of 310 E. Glendale ave., and Chilton C. Raiford, 25, of 913 Prince st. All four are Navy veterans.

Forestry Board Lists St. Marys Meeting

Leonardtown, Md., April 16 (Spl.).—The St. Marys County Forestry Board will meet here April 30. New board members were announced today. The board consists of Claude Johnson of Morganza, J. Franklin Adams of Mechanicsville, Mattingly Guy of River Springs and F. D. Hayden and F. Scot Calloway of Great Mills.

The board is attempting to have woodcutters and lumbermen conserve the virgin forests in St. Marys County.

Lancaster Road Case

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16 (AP).—Judge Leon M. Bazile has advised attorneys he will render his decision in the Lancaster County road location case in Lancaster Circuit Court Monday, May 3, at 2 p. m.

Residents of Huntsville and Litwalton filed suit to prevent relocation of State Route 3 by the State Highway Department so os to bypass these two communities.

Heads Power Office

Winchester, Va., April 16.—Garland L. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Johnston of this city, has been appointed district manager of the South Penn Power Co., Waynesboro, Pa. Since 1940 he has been commercial manager of the Potomac Edison Co. at Cumberland.

Governor Tuck Asked to Call Special Vote

A letter was on its way today from the chairman of the Republican Sixth Congressional District committee asking Governor Tuck to call a special election for the unexpired term of Representative J. Lindsay Almond, jr., of Roanoke.

John Strickler wrote the Governor yesterday that he thinks "the people of this district are entitled to, and should have a representative in Congress to whom they may go with their problems."

Charges to be Studied

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—Republican charges of irregularities in last November's election in Wise County will be studied anew next week by the State Board of Elections.

Board Secretary Levin Nock Davis said today he expects to discuss with the board the advisability of visiting Wise County to obtain further information, or of deciding the case on the basis of evidence now at hand.

The hearing of evidence in February was interrupted by the session of the General Assembly.

Stanley Files Papers

Richmond, Va., April 16 (AP).—Congressman Thomas B. Stanley became today the third Virginia incumbent Congressman to file his qualification papers as a candidate for renomination in the August primary. The Fifth District representative filed with the State Board of Elections.

Others who have filed are S. Otis Bland, of the First District, and J. Vaughan Gary, of the Third District. Thus far none of the incumbents has official opposition for the primary election.

Wage Dispute Idles Crab Pickers

Crisfield, Md., April 16 (AP).—About 350 women crab pickers still were idle here today in what Union Business Agent Melvin Tyler called a "lockout."

Federal Conciliator Stanley Clevenger met with representatives of the 15 packing firms and the AFL Seafood Workers Union yesterday, but both sides said nothing was accomplished.

Tyler said the workers were not on strike.

After three or four meetings to renegotiate a contract which expires July 1, Tyler declared, a spokesman for the packers notified him that the wage was going to be cut from $1 to 90 cents an hour.

Tyler said he told the packers he would send union members back to work but at the $1 wage which has been paid since September, 1946, and which is called for in the contract.

The packers' spokesman then notified him, Tyler added, that "there would be no work until this thing is straightened out."

Potomac River Group Examines Coal Plants

Harrisburg, Pa., April 16 (AP).—A first hand examination of coal desilting plants in Pennsylvania's anthracite region was begun today by members of the Interstate Commission of the Potomac River Basin.

Representatives of the agency opened a two-day inspection tour of operations designed to aid in abating pollution of Commonwealth streams.

The commission is composed of Representatives from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia and the Federal Government.

Lineman Electrocuted On Green Haven Job

Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP).—Lineman William Polke, 27, of Magothy Manor was electrocuted yesterday, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. said today.

Manager Carl N. Fuller said a line Polke was stringing on the West Shore road in Green Haven came in contact with a 4400-volt power line overhead.

William Stinchcomb, 26, Glen Burnie, a lineman on the truck on which the phone line was reeled, was knocked out but recovered after minor burns.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to those late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Taxpayer Confesses All After Reading Small Print

A District Liner who will remain anonymous for obvious reasons confesses that he's been short-changing the District Government on his income tax payments.

He thought the deductions for charity were the same as on the Federal return, but has now discovered that they're not.

The local law limits the deduction of gifts to money paid to qualified institutions "the activities of which are carried on to a substantial extent in the District."

Our taxpayer says: "I pay the local income tax because I am domiciled here under the law. But I am a legal resident of another State, and still make substantial contributions to a hometown charity.

"I've always deducted those contributions, and nobody has questioned them. But now I discover that gifts to charities which don't operate in the District aren't deductible.

"Since Washington contains so many out-of-Staters, it might be a valuable service to call this situation to their attention, so that they won't make the same mistake I made."

SAME DIFFERENCE

Mrs. Mary E. Summers of 733 13th st. se., celebrated her 100th birthday Thursday by wearing a brand new dress.

She could have worn one of her old ones from 75 years ago and been just as much in style.

MYSTERY TUNE

John R. Follin of Lexington Park, Md., says it's "Song of India"; V. A. Koontz prefers "Vision of Salome"; and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kinzler of 511 8th st., District Heights, Md., suggest "In a Persian Market."

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

Traffic Director George Keneipp is a pretty good scout.

When he appeared on my broadcast Thursday, he fielded every question I tossed at him—even the tough ones—and came up smiling.

The result was an informative discussion of Washington's troublesome traffic situation—a discussion which helped listeners understand the traffic director's problems, and helped the traffic director understand the gripes of his constituents."

I don't know how many other local officials would be willing to submit to similar cross-examination, but here's a thought:

If you have some questions that you'd like to put to one of our City Fathers, drop me a line and tell me about it.

I'll invite the official you name to appear on the broadcast—and then we'll see what happens.

STREET SCENE

Our reporter for this one is Mrs. F. N. Countiss of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw.

More than a score of pedestrians were lined up on the curb at 11th and F sts. nw., waiting for the traffic lights to change.

Suddenly one lone figure emerged from the crowd and we saw a young man start across the intersection.

We couldn't hear the officer, but we didn't have to. Hands on his hips, he was telling the young man a thing or two. But the jaywalker just smiled sweetly, handed the cop a slip of paper, and continued on his way.

In answer to our inquiring glances, he showed us the slip of paper. On it were the words:

MAIL BAG

Dear Mr. Bill:

Since my father passed away this week, I am lonely and would like a fox terrier to cheer me and my sister up.

I am 11 years old and my sister is 9. We would like a housebroken dog. My telephone number is Randolph 8137. I was sick all day Thursday and my mother wouldn't let me go to school. Thank you.

Martin J. Morris,
911 Delafield pl. nw.

Dear Martin:

I'm very sorry to hear about your father, Martin, and I would very much like to help you get a puppy.

However, it is strictly against the rules for me to ask anybody to give you a dog, so I can't do it. At least, not in so many words. But if you still don't have a pup by tonight, call me up and I'll see that you get one.

Meantime, keep your chin up. The Road of Life is full of rough bumps for all of us; we've got to learn to take those bumps without being thrown off our course.

Bill.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

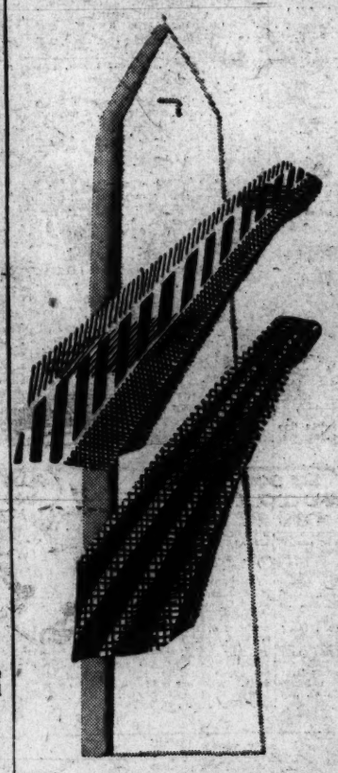
NEW YORK.—Eleanor Roosevelt was invited to be the Democratic committeewoman-at-large, and refused the political post . . . Harper's magazine, which is 98 years old, will change its format, starting with the July issue. For the first time it will use a photograph on its cover. It will be the size of the New Yorker . . . George Jean Nathan, the drama critic, hates all movies and movie-makers. Nathan, who suggested the productions of the two Paul Vincent Carroll plays which won Critics Circle Prizes, was asked if he still is friendly with Carroll. "He got mad at me," the critic replied, "and wrote two movies."

Sheila Barrett told this story at Bradley's last night—of the Democratic leader here whose secretary saw him pecking at the keys of his typewriter. When the politician left the secretary examined the typewriter and found the sheet of paper still in the carriage. And on the paper were the words, "NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THE PARTY . . . NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THE PARTY . . . This is not typewriter practice."

One of the newer digest magazines is in difficulties and will go bi-monthly soon.

TIES FROM AROUND THE WORLD



Verticals

add inches to the shorter man

Vertical stripes give an illusion of height that flatter the short or portly gentleman. We have an innumerable collection of vertical stripes, wide and narrow—in a galaxy of colors. All are longer length, hand-tacked and of finest fabrics.

Our collection is monumental. Our statistics are rough—but we venture a guess that our stock of ties could wrap the Monument several times around.

B-29s Penetrate British Air Net

By Drew Pearson

In maneuvers over Great Britain, the Air Force has demonstrated its ability to slip a bombing mission of B-29 super-fortresses through the equivalent of Russia's defenses.

Gen. Le May

Lieut. Gen. Curtis Le May, Air Force chief in Europe, arranged with the Royal Air Force to send a mock mission against Britain's tight intercepter and radar net. Because of long experience during the war, the British net is supposed to be the most efficient in the world. However, the B-29s not only broke through to their target but most of them were never detected.

Secret of the American success was altitude. The big forts flew in at ceiling of 35,000 feet.

As a result of the maneuvers, Air Force strategists are convinced that the "iron curtain" around the Soviet could never stop a highflying mission of B-29s, especially since Russia's defenses are stretched out over thousands of miles, compared to the relatively small area defended by Britain.

Note—The joint British-American maneuvers were pulled off by General Le May without orders from Washington.

MacArthur's Tour?

General MacArthur's political boosters are trying to find a way to revive their hero's battered popularity. Despite the drubbing MacArthur received in California, Wisconsin and Nebraska, Congressman A. L. Miller of Nebraska says: "MacArthur did not quit at Bataan, and he is still a very live candidate now. I am amazed that anyone should count the general out."

Next move being urged by MacArthur's friends is his immediate return to the United States for a hero's ovation. If MacArthur flies to California and makes a triumphal cross-country rear-platform train trip to Washington, with a speech to a joint session of Congress, they claim his political appeal would be revived.

Note—Other public observers believe MacArthur might wind up with as many boos as cheers on such a tour. In addition, it would just about ruin his work as commander of occupied Japan.

Locomotives to Russia

Alert War Assets Administrator Jess Larson has stepped in to block the sale to Finland of 30 locomotives, built during the war for broad-gauged Russian railroad tracks.

Larson reported to Presidential Adviser John Steelman that he suspected the Finns of fronting for Russia, and got White House permission to hold up the sale.

Before Larson stepped in, however, the Finns had already bought up six locomotives at $6200 each. For the remaining 30 they were prepared to go as high as $50,000 each—an indication of how badly Russia needs rolling stock.

Jobs Grease Machines

Ed Flynn, boss of the Bronx, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and one of the men who put Harry Truman across as Vice President, has decided to stick to Harry for another round.

To insiders this is big news. For Ed Flynn, more than almost any other Democratic leader, has groused and growled, fumed and fussed at Truman's leadership. Several times he has threatened to bolt. Once he said he wasn't going near the White House any more.

Despite all this, Ed has finally sent word to Democratic Chairman McGrath that he will stick.

Behind this, insiders suspect, is the same thing influencing other stand-pat Democrats—patronage. Unless they go along with Truman they are cut off from the thing that greases political machines—jobs.

One-Man Dictatorship

In addition to the excellent job done by Senator Bridges in smoothing John L. Lewis' ruffled hair, Congress might give some thought to the most undemocratic part of Lewis' setup—his failure to hold real mine elections.

Unlike the United Auto Workers, the Electrical Workers and various other unions which stage tough election battles annually, the United Mine Workers hasn't had any real election for years.

Once or twice rival mine leaders have tried to oppose Lewis, only to be ostracized or beaten up. Gradually, therefore, all leaders with views of their own have drifted out of the mine union—John Brophy, Phil Murray, Van Bittner, Allan Haywood and David MacDonald. Lewis now stands serene and alone, the supreme dictator of the miners. There is no one in Washington headquarters to challenge him.

Furthermore, Lewis also keeps tight hold over every district leader. And woe unto any rank-and-file member of the union who revolts against a district leader. His life is made miserable.

Only hope for breaking up the Lewis dictatorship is a law permitting minority groups of miners to petition the National Labor Relations Board to hold district elections or even national elections in the United Mine Workers. Many miners resented the current coal strike, but there was nothing they could do about it. If they could stage free elections, however, Lewis would do more consulting with his own men before throwing both their economy and the Nation's out of whack.

My sympathy

The grief of sudden tragedy . . . Is poignant as can be . . . And all that I can offer you . . . Is friendly sympathy . . . But my condolence really comes . . . Directly from the heart . . . Because I know how sad it is . . . When loved ones have to part . . . I know you will be lonely as . . . The days and nights go by . . . And there will be a thousand tears . . . That you will want to cry . . . And yet we must remember that . . . There is a will divine . . . And we may never question it . . . Or fathom God's design . . . And so I grieve with you today . . . And say a fervent prayer . . . That God will bless and always keep . . . Your loved one in His care.
